Mrs. Schroeder And Dague Are Safely Landed In County Jail

CONFERENCE NOT BEING HASTY IS WILL'S COMMENT

(Special To The News)

LONDON, Eng., Jan. 25.—Well the conference didn't do anything yesterday as usual, but there was a famous case being tried where a fellow had swindled, through false stock transactions, the people out of ten million dollars.

Will Rogers They just give him 14 years so fast that it took the Americans breath away and all they have talked about is English justice compared to ours.

Its the consensus of opinion of all of them here that if it had been at home he would have gone into vaudeville or the senate. None of that habeas corpus and suspended sentences or appealing it when you commit a crime over here. You just wake up surrounded by a small space. Our delegation ought to be over here studying British justice.

Our battleships are not harming us near as much as court delays, corruption and shyster lawyers. Went to his home last night and had a two-hour visit with the great Bernard Shaw and for once in my life I knew enough to keep still and he was going great. I invited him to America and he is coming as soon as I come home and civilize me.

Yours, WILL.

Attorney Says No Further Action Will Be Taken—Mother Hasn't Seen Son

SHERIFF GUARDS PRISONERS WELL Sisters Visit Irene—She Wants Donnie—Discover Irene Is Minor

Habeas corpus proceedings for the release of Donnie Schroeder, four and a half year old son of Irene Schroeder, the Golden Tiger, will be dropped, according to Congressman Ben Rosenbloom of Wheeling, W. Va., who is the attorney for Joe Crawford, father of Irene.

"In deference to the wishes of the family I have dropped the habeas corpus proceedings," said Mr. Rosenbloom. "I know that the Lawrence county authorities will not want to keep the boy away from his mother and we do not wish to have any more legal action than is necessary."

Differences Over Attorneys Some differences have arisen in the selection of an attorney. The citizens of Benwood, W. Va., raised a fund of money to provide an attorney for Irene Schroeder as a courtesy to her father, who is a citizen of Benwood. The officials of Benwood and several other mayors had a part in it and when the money was raised Mr. Rosenbloom was retained.

He was given the power of attorney to act for Joe Crawford, and has come to New Castle today and were admitted to the jail by Sheriff Johnston. There was little conversation, and no hysterics. Mrs. Baum greeted her sister, Irene, talked to both of them, and Mrs. Baum said that she was retaining attorneys. One of the women said on leaving that she thought Mrs. Schroeder was eager to see "Donnie."

Allegheny College Instructor Speaks On Theme "The New Pioneers"

"America has only begun to face the test of her strength. We are living on a new frontier of social and industrial reorganization, of artistic creation and spiritual development. A frontier of congestion rather than isolation; a frontier where the question is not how to live independently without neighbors, but how to live in the close contacts of the co-operative society of modern times," declared Dr. Lee D. McClean, head of the department of economics, Allegheny College, in speaking last night at the commencement exercises for the third mid-year class of the senior high school, held in the Benjamin Franklin auditorium.

Speaks on "The New Pioneers" Continuing, Dr. McClean, who had "New Pioneers" for his subject, said that "on this new frontier there are new trails to be blazed, new routes to be mapped, new experiments to be made, new problems to be solved. The pioneering, exploring, adventurous spirit must be maintained."

Garlich Is Sent To Penitentiary For 7 To 14 Years

Sentenced For Murder Of George Markota By Judge Chambers This Morning

SELF DEFENSE WAS PLEA OF PRISONER

Steve Garlich, convicted of murder in the second degree in connection with the slaying of George Markota at Carbon, was sentenced by Judge Chambers this morning to not less than seven, nor more than 14 years imprisonment in the Western penitentiary.

Judge Chambers passed sentence immediately after he had handed down an opinion refusing Garlich a new trial. Garlich was convicted at the December term of court. In the trial of the case he set up a plea of self defense, claiming that Markota had attacked him with a knife at the time the fatal shots were fired.

Leniency Plea. A plea was made for leniency by Garlich's attorneys on the grounds that he had always been a good reputation, while the reputation of the man who was killed had been bad, the testimony having shown that he had been involved in frequent quarrels, and was generally regarded as a dangerous man.

In sentencing Garlich Judge Chambers said that the bad feature of the case in connection with a self defense plea, was that Garlich had fired upon Markota several times after he had fallen to the ground. Had there been but one shot the jury might have given more weight to the self defense plea.

Other Sentence. William W. Coulter, who was charged with the larceny of some brass fittings from the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie Railroad Company, entered a plea. He was paroled by Judge Hildebrand upon the payment of $25 fine and costs, and restoration of the property or the value thereof.

Radio Commission Scores Henderson For His Language

(International News Service) WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—The federal radio commission today issued 30 licenses to about 60 broadcasting stations in various sections of the country whose applications for a change of frequency, operating time and power, are pending before the commission. The temporary licenses were also issued to broadcasters awaiting settlement of charges they deviated from their allotted frequencies.

William K. Henderson, operator of station KWKH, Shreveport, La., was among those who received a 30-day license. It was issued with the understanding, he refrains from using so-called "cuss words" in his programs. Senator Dill (D), Washington, recently demanded Henderson's license be revoked because of his alleged use of profanity.

300 Jurors To Be Called For Coming Court

Many Murder Cases Make Change In Standing Order Of Court Necessary

PROVISION MADE FOR THREE WEEKS

Judges Hildebrand And Chambers Direct Method Of Summoning Venires

Owing to the number of murder cases to come up at the March term of court, there being two such venires, the order made this morning provides that two venires of 60 jurors each be summoned for the week beginning March 10th, two of 60 each for the week beginning March 17 and one of 60 jurors for the week beginning March 24th.

Total of 300 Jurors This will make a total of 300 jurors to be summoned for the March term of court, in addition to the regular grand jury. This is the first time in the history of the county that so many jurors have been regularly summoned. It is also the first time in the history of the county that there are so many prospective murder cases.

There are two in connection with the murder of Brady Paul, four in connection with the murder of Frank Rea, one in connection with John Seavers, who has already been convicted of the murder of his wife, and is awaiting trial for the murder of Catherine Rodgers. This is seven cases in all. It was believed that there would be eight, but this morning (Continued On Page Two)

Mrs. Rebecca Felton Dies In Georgia, Was First Woman Senator

Bronchial Attack And Pneumonia Fatal To Grand Old Woman Of Georgia, Aged 94

(International News Service) ATLANTA, Jan. 25.—Death today had closed the career of Mrs. Rebecca Lattimer Felton, 94, Georgia's grand old woman and the first and only member of her sex to ever hold a seat in the United States senate.

She died a few minutes before midnight last night at a local hospital where she had been a patient since January 16 when she was stricken with a bronchial attack that developed into pneumonia.

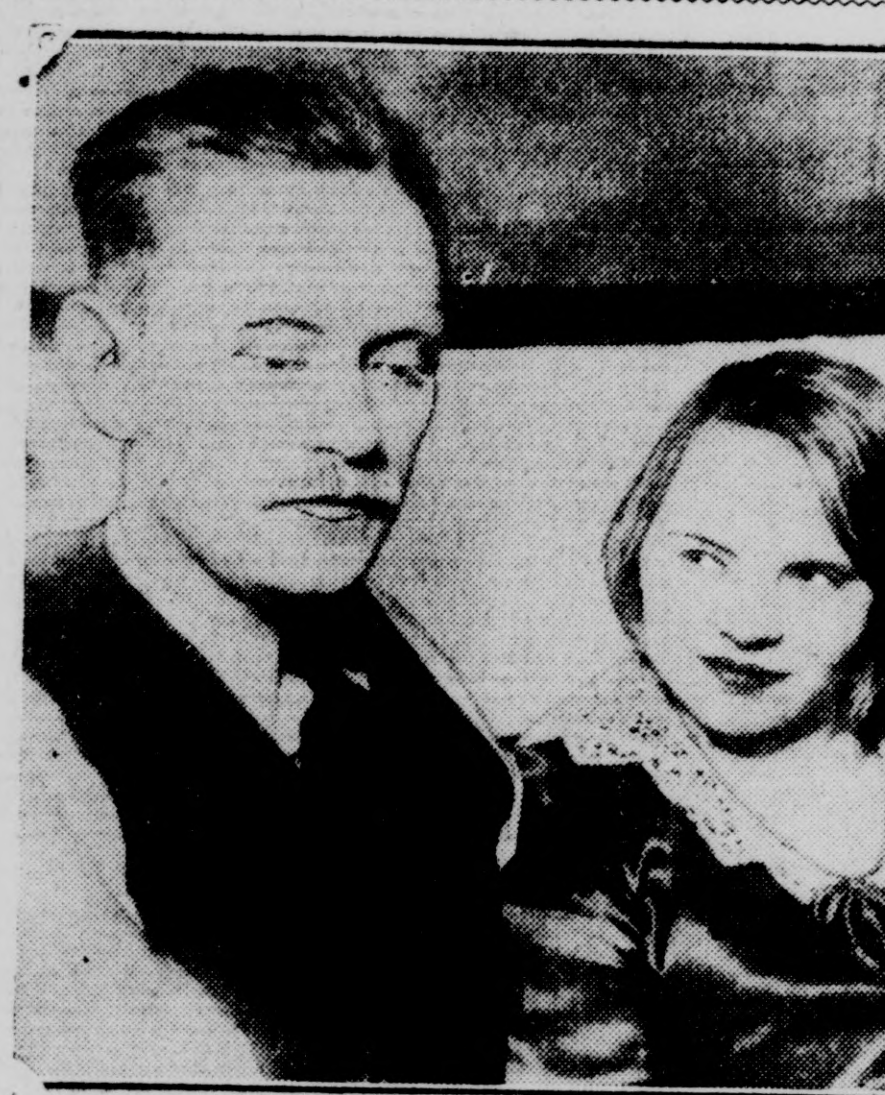

While general plans have not been completed, it was announced that interment would be made in her home town Cartersville Ga., where sometime ago she erected a small mausoleum in the Felton family lot. She had given instructions that her body be buried there.

Of the Old South. Surviving the pioneer suffragist are a grandson, William H. Felton of Cartersville; a granddaughter, Mrs. Alfred Ogram of Gulfport, Miss., and a great-granddaughter, Miss Lillian Ann Felton.

Mrs. Felton was a unique personality in Georgia history.

Born in Dekalb county June 10, 1835, she was reared on one of the antebellum plantations that flourished in the "golden age" of the old south. Her maiden name was Rebecca Lattimer.

ENROUTE TO NEW CASTLE

Irene Schroeder and Glenn Dague. This picture, taken yesterday morning, in Chicago, shows Irene Schroeder and Glenn Dague, seated in the train enroute to New Castle.

The picture was presented in The News extra, a few minutes after the prisoners arrived last night, and was the result of some speedy newspaper work. The picture was snapped for The News, on the train in Chicago, Friday about 9 o'clock, was then rushed into Chicago, and telephoned to Cleveland, Ohio, to the Central Press Association headquarters. Here the telephoto picture was made into a newspaper picture, and about 6 o'clock last night, a News representative was given the picture in Cleveland, bringing it to New Castle on the same train that brought the officers and prisoners. It appeared in The News issue a few moments later.

Will Eliminate Grade Crossings

Commission Orders Three Eliminated In Little Beaver Township

The Public Service Commission at Harrisburg today directed the abolition of three crossings where township roads cross the tracks of the Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne and Chicago railway in Little Beaver township, Lawrence county.

The abolition of the crossings will be effected by construction of marginal roads paralleling the railroad tracks. Two crossings will be maintained for the convenience of nearby property owners that they may reach the relocated road.

The cost of the work is estimated at $18,221 and will be done by the Pennsylvania railroad, lessee of the railroad. The Public Service Commission will contribute $9,000 toward the cost of the work to be done by the railroad.

Property damage estimated at $500 will be paid by the township.

Firemen Called By Small Blazes

Firemen were called out to answer two alarms during the past 24 hours, no damage being reported in either case.

At 9:35 last evening, they were called to the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Richardson of 102 Fairfield avenue, where a chimney was burning out.

At 11 o'clock this morning, firemen from the Seventh ward were summoned to the home of Ralph Russo of 20 North Wayne street by an alarm from box 74. Arriving on the scene they found children had set fire to paper in the cellar. It did not spread to anything else, however, and when the firemen arrived, they found the blaze was out.

"The story is silly," said Sheriff Johnston. "There was no trouble, although the hundreds of curious people there nearly caused trouble. It was a matter of getting the prisoners through the crowd and this we did."

"It's a laugh," said County Deputee Peck Lee. "There was no trouble between us and the sheriff's men. They co-operated with us splendidly and we appreciate it a great deal."

Crowd Surrounds Train And Jail Despite Secrecy Of Plans

WOMAN NOT GIVEN SIGHT OF "DONNIE"

Dague In Downstairs Cell And Mrs. Schroeder In Upstairs Tier

Stationary beds replaced rolling berths Friday night for Irene Schroeder and W. Glenn Dague, when they were returned to the Lawrence County jail after a 2400 mile trip from Phoenix, Arizona. At 8:20 o'clock the two prisoners arrived at the old seventh ward station of the P. & L. E. railroad. At 8:35 the jail doors clanged on them and the man and woman for whom a nation searched, were back in the county in which the murder of Corporal Brady Paul occurred.

There was some little confusion at the station when the train arrived, nor was this unusual. From Cleveland, O., on to New Castle the trip was one of turmoil and excitement. In the Cleveland station, news photographers fought with each other for vantage shots at the two. At Warren, O., 3,000 people thronged the station platform for a glimpse of the famous pair. At Niles the scene was repeated and at Youngstown the platform was crowded with at least 10,000 people.

Many Here. It was first planned to unload the prisoners at New Castle Junction and rush them in cars. At Cleveland, O., Sheriff Frank N. Johnston telephoned the county commissioners and made such arrangements. On the trip over from Cleveland it became certain that a crowd would be present and the arrangements were (Continued On Page Five)

Mother And Five Children Die In Flames Of Home

Fire At Atlanta, Mich., Claims Six In Family; Son Fails At Rescue Attempt (International News Service) ATLANTA, Mich., Jan. 25.—Five children and their mother were burned to death here early today when a fire destroyed their home. The fire started from an overheated stove.

The mother was Mrs. J. B. Kent, 18, who attempted to guide her mother to safety. She collapsed before James could lead her outside. He is suffering severe burns. The children were three daughters and two sons.

When you climb the hill in the north or east, and your breath is coming in puffs, when you hike along up a mountain side, or scale some precipitous bluffs, you have often wished for a level land, where hills or mountains weren't known, and you'd stop and pant and you'd wipe your brow, and amuse yourself with a groan. But after seeing and endless sight of land that is flat as your hand, my boy you'll see that a mountain top is a sight that is noble and grand. For level country may look all right, but it gets on your nerves and say, you'll want a hill for your old back yard, it's twenty-five today.

PA NEW OBSERVES

Saw a North street lady feeding the birds, Friday. It is a good idea this cold weather, when so much of the birds' regular feeding ground is covered with snow. An East Washington street man says that all he has to do to have birds fly into his yard from all directions, is to say, "Birdie, birdie." The birds know that means some nice bread crumbs.

No work is being done on the site of the new Epworth M. E. church, because of the weather conditions. However, the parts of the ground which have been dug out, trench like, furnish a lot of fun for children. They dart around in the trenches and play hide and seek.

Workmen were busy at the corner of Butler avenue and East Washington street, Friday, probing for a leak in a water pipe.

Iceicles several yards long hang from water spouts over the Neshannock river.

Young Pa New heard a auto horn, the other day, that greatly resembled the crow of a rooster.

J. C. Mathews of Greenwood avenue states that he has just received a crate of oranges from Albert Yoho, who is spending the winter at St. Cloud, Fla. Mr. Yoho picked the oranges from his own trees. Mr. Mathews states that the fruit is unusually large and sweet.

Although the weather warmed up considerably late yesterday, it turned cold again during the night and this morning was only a few notches above the zero point. The lowest temperature was eight above, the local weather observer states.

Mrs. D. M. Ritchie of South Mill street, and Mrs. Jack Sines of East Washington street, left Friday evening for an extended visit to Raymondville, Texas, New Mexico and other points south.

Daily Weather Report

Weather statistics for the 24-hour period ending at 9 o'clock this morning are as follows: Maximum temperature, 24. Minimum temperature, 8. Precipitation .03 inches, 30 inches of snowfall. River stage 57 feet and falling.

Scranton Grand Jury Bombshell Explodes Today

Almost Entire Scranton Official List Past And Present Involved In Scandal

124 INDICTMENTS HAVE BEEN RETURNED

(International News Service) SCRANTON, Pa., Jan. 25.—Denounced and indicted by the Lackawanna county grand jury in the most sensational action taken by a Pennsylvania investigative body since the Philadelphia police scandals of 1928, present and former Scranton officials today began the construction of defense bulwarks to aid them when they are placed on trial next month on charges of conspiracy in connection with slot machine "racketeering" here.

Coming like a bolt from the blue, the report of the grand jury, containing seventy-eight names and 124 indictments, was made public here late yesterday. The report fairly bristled with the names of former mayors, burgesses, former and present chiefs of police and other officials charged with enforcement of the law and now charged with plotting to evade and nullify it.

Former Mayor Indicted
Chief among those indicted for conspiracy to set up and operate slot machines were:

Former Mayor E. B. Jernyn, who served two terms as the city's chief executive and rated as one of Scranton's wealthiest residents. Jernyn is reputed to be a multi-millionaire.
Omer C. Davis, sheriff of Lackawanna county, former county treasurer and former clerk of the courts.
Former Director of Public Safety James Arigoni who served under Jernyn during the latter's administration.

Chief of Police
Chief of Police James Henshaw who recently suspended two "Rookie" policemen when they reported that two gunmen had attempted to enter the home of President Judge E. C. Newcomb who instituted the probe.
Herman J. Friend, former civil service commissioner charged with having distributed more than $3,000 protection money monthly among city officials on behalf of the slot machine syndicate.

Burgess William G. Payton, of Dunmore, and Chief of Police John J. Burke of Dunmore.

Burgess James P. Lally, of Mayfield; Chief of Police Wasco Terpack of Mayfield, and former Chief of Police Edward Shallock of Mayfield.

Chief of Police Joseph Maholic of Olyphant and former Chief of Police Stephen Pollock of Throop.

Soon after word of the grand jury's action was flashed about the city the underworld struck again in a temporarily successful coup d'etat. A hotel suite occupied by auditors engaged in checking bank accounts and records of persons implicated in the grand jury probe was burglarized last night and valuable evidence against persons already under indictment was stolen.

DOG DISCONTENTED PRISONER IN JAIL

One of the most discontented prisoners in the city jail in some time, was the fine looking shepherd dog taken into custody by one of the members of the police force.

The dog, which had no license, for four days previously and almost continuously had been running along the east and west side streets, cars, from one end of the city to the other and then back again.

When finally brought into the police station, the dog was somewhat exhausted but as he regained his pep, he began to show signs of rebellion at being tied up and kept giving notice of desire to be free once more. The police will seek a good home for him.

Companion Of Local Cavalry Men Disappears From Township Stables

"Buddy," the little black and white Spitz dog, mascot of Troop F 103rd Cavalry, Pennsylvania National Guard, stationed in this city, was reported missing today.
During the winter "Buddy" is kept at the troop's stables in Scotland Lane, and it was from here that he disappeared a few days ago.
The dog's license is 1994, and should anyone run across him, they are asked to immediately call 5960-M. "Buddy" is a real companion of the troopers and it would be a hard blow to the organization if he fails to turn up.

Donnie's Lawyer In Senate And Congress

Attorney Ben Rosenbloom, retained by Joseph Crawford, father of Irene Schroeder, and several officials of Benwood, W. Va., as private citizens, is one of West Virginia's outstanding legal figures.

He has served four years in the West Virginia senate, two terms as congressman and was a candidate for U. S. senate against ex-Governor Hatfield but lost the race.

Attorney Rosenbloom is a past exalted ruler of the B. P. O. E. and during his football days played at New Castle. He was a member of the Pitt team which met Grove City here.

He was a member of the 1901-1902 West Virginia university varsities and is known here.

Hearing Of Martin And McDevitt Delayed

Hearing of Jack McDevitt and Jesse Martin before Alderman L. C. Stimson At Estate.

Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, chief of the American delegation, is spending the week-end at the palatial country place he has rented at Great Stanmore, Middlesex, a few miles outside of London. Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald is at Chequers, official country residence of the British premier.

It is likely that both the American and British chief delegates will act as hosts over the week-end to various members of their own and perhaps also foreign delegations. The French contingent, most of whom are re-maining at their London headquarters, expressed the hope that these week-end conversations might have the effect of lifting the parley out of its present "negative" status.

Present indications are that the next plenary session will be devoted in large measure to discussion of the conference Agenda. The French in all likelihood will demand immediate consideration of their auxiliary needs, while the Americans, following the course of action which has identified their activities since the parley was first broached months ago, will ask that cruisers be given premiere consideration.

Hope To Prevent Crossing Crashes By School Buses

(International News Service) HARRISBURG, Jan. 25.—Pennsylvania, through the bureau of accidents, today took steps to prevent an accident in the Keystone state similar to that which recently cost the lives of nine school children and a driver on an Ohio railroad grade crossing.

John P. Dohoney, chief of the bureau of accidents, in a letter addressed to all county and district school superintendents asked for a report on any grade crossing over which school buses operate and which is believed to be dangerous.

The adequacy of protection and the possible hazards of each crossing so reported will be investigated carefully, Dohoney said.

Donnie was led back to the Juvenile Detention home by Mr. Dunlap's father, straight through the crowd outside not one of whom recognized the little fellow. He was taken back to await word as to whether Sheriff Frank N. Johnston would permit a reunion last night between him and his mother.

When the crowd which had gathered outside the jail eager to catch a glimpse of Irene realized that they would be unable to see any more of her than they had they turned to the detention home anxious to see Donnie. Many approached the place and tried to peer beneath the drawn blinds. But Donnie was inside making ready for bed all unconscious of the fact that he might soon be reunited with his mother from whom he has been separated for almost a month.

WHAT IS A SPECTROSCOPE? By Arthur DeV. Carpenter

Every child has looked through a piece of transparent beveled glass and seen the bright colors of the rainbow. That beveled glass is a SPECTROSCOPE. What came through the glass to the eye, was either vibrations of different wave-lengths. When they strike the eye, they create the sensation of light. Radio waves are the same as light waves, only they are longer. Light passed through a spectroscopic separates into a ribbon band of rainbow colors having red at one end of the band, and violet at the other. The other colors appear in definite order between the two extremes of red and violet. That band of rainbow light is a SPECTROGRAM.

ing a new trial was refused Steve Garlick for the murder of George Markota at Carbon and he was sentenced, thus eliminating one case. An account of the sentencing of Garlick appears elsewhere.

To Facilitate Trials It is possible also that the Severs case may not come up. Attorney Myers of Cleveland is expected here today when his case will be discussed by him and Attorney Logan and some plan of action agreed upon.

In changing the order for the summoning of jurors both Judges Hildebrand and Chambers believe that it will facilitate the trials by having more than the regular number of jurors. When panels run out while selecting a jury in a murder trial there is usually some delay in summoning takersmen and the work of the court is held up. It is likely that when the murder trials are taken up there will be one going on in each courtroom.

Rivers And Harbors Board Quite Active

(International News Service) WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—The rivers and harbors board of engineers has about doubled its work in an endeavor to expedite the numerous projects for river and harbor improvements now pending, it was learned at the war department today.

At least two days each week are being devoted to public hearings and executive sessions, while the rest of the time is being spent in preparation of digests and personal studies by members of the board.

The next public hearing will be January 28 when the Hollywood Harbor, (Florida) project comes up. There will be two hearings on February 4, the Grand River, Mich., project at 9:45 a. m., and the project for the improvement of the Allegheny river between Pittsburgh and Oil City, Pa., at 11 a. m.

February 5 the board will hear interested parties concerning the Yaquina river, Ore., project at 10 a. m., and at 2 o'clock will hold a hearing on the project for the Broadkill and Murderkill rivers, Delaware.

Petitions Presented And Orders Made At Court This Morning

World War Vet Says He Has Recovered And Wants Estate

Motions and petitions in a number of cases were presented to Judges Hildebrand and Chambers at a session of court this forenoon.

In the divorce case of Joseph Scardecchio against Rose Scardecchio, Mrs. Scardecchio denies the accusation of cruelty and asks that a bill of particulars be filed. Rule was made returnable on the first Monday of March.

Motion for judgment for want of defense was made in the case of the Atlantic Refining Company against J. F. Travers.

In the estate of Alice Robison, the Lawrence Savings and Trust Company, guardian, was authorized to pay an allowance of $100 for medical expenses.

Divorce case of Florence J. Thompson against John C. Thompson was discontinued, a reconciliation having been effected.

Gus Seifgas, for whom the Lawrence Savings and Trust Company was appointed guardian during a period of ill health, asked that he now be permitted to look after his own affairs. He is a World War veteran and after getting out of a hospital in Washington, D. C., was in poor health when he came here. His estate amounts to about $8,000. He is at present living in Erie. Hearing will be held on February 8th to determine the facts in the matter.

Alias subpoenas were awarded in the divorce cases of Minnie Clements against Thomas Clements and Lester Altman against Hazel Altman.

In the estate of Eva Martin, administrator R. L. Wallace asked permission to sell property in Union township. Notice by publication was directed.

Auto Dealers Make Plans For Biggest Show In History

Tentative Arrangements Are Made At Meeting Of Dealers Held Friday

Plans for the biggest and best automobile show ever held in New Castle, were tentatively arranged at the meeting of the New Castle Auto Dealers association held in the Elks club Friday afternoon.

With the Association now 100 per cent in membership, following the induction of the Shenango Motor Co. and Morgan and Burrows yesterday, plans are expected to be carried forward to completion rapidly.

The dates of February 27, 28 and March 1 were chosen for the great exposition, which will be held in The Cathedral, arrangements for its use having already been completed.

Following their decision, it was decided to send James Foster to Chicago to review the coming auto show there, where the president A. C. McCoy and Secretary Ray F. Hall, will also attend the coming Cleveland show for the same purpose and New Castle residents will profit by the ideas gained.

NEWSPAPERMEN BESIEGE JAIL

Newspapermen and photographers from big news associations, large and small newspapers from various cities and towns today are camped at the court house and Lawrence county jail, each writer bent on seeing Irene Schroeder and Glenn Dague, also Donnie and also the photographers who are "snapping" almost every person with whom they come in contact, providing they are in any way seemed likely to be connected with the case.

When the "Schroeder-Dague" train arrived last night, many newspapermen were on the train, others had arrived here and the sheriff's office was crowded for hours.

Sheriff John Johnston, however, as sheriff is handling the situation exceptionally well.

Two Hundred Women At Card Party Are Rescued From Fire

Masonic Building At Turtle Creek Takes Fire; Women Holding Card Party

(International News Service)
TURTLE CREEK, Pa., Jan. 25.—Two hundred women, guests at a card party last night, today credit firemen of this town for saving them from injury and possible loss of life last night when they were caught in the fire which damaged the Masonic building here and stores on the first floor, $35,000.

The women, members of an affiliated Masonic lodge, were playing cards in the third floor of the building when the fire was discovered by Miss Rose Schwab, chief telephone operator who was working at the local exchange on the second floor of the building.

More than a score of firemen battled through the dense smoke and prevented a threatened stampede and panic among the guests. Two of the telephone operators on the second floor were overcome by the smoke before they could be rescued.

The fire is believed to have started in the Strathern Hardware Company's storeroom on the first floor.

JAYWALKERS

THE police department of New York City is empowered by the city charter to regulate vehicular traffic. To what extent it may regulate pedestrian traffic has not been finally decided by the courts. Police Commissioner Whalen claims the power to absolutely control pedestrians in their use of the streets by the exercise of "spontaneous" police power—whatever that may mean, and probably the courts will have to decide, sooner or later, whether the power to regulate vehicles includes the power to regulate pedestrians.

Why the question was not settled long ago is difficult to explain. It has been raised time and time again in every city, town and hamlet and a court decision would be more far-reaching importance than many other court rulings. No doubt the troubles, strife and tribulations, that would beset the police department which essayed to place pedestrian traffic under the same restrictions and rules to which vehicular traffic is subject, have something to do with it.

While the inconsistencies and discriminations of the law may forbid it, reason, equality and public safety demand more strict control of pedestrian traffic. Motor cars and trucks must go, stop, turn and back-up when and where the police will it. Compared to the free-moving pedestrian, the driver is a slave.

The police have a way to prevent vehicular traffic from "hogging" public thoroughfares. There should be a way for them to prevent the pedestrian from "jaywalking" and usurping what few rights remain for the driver.

BIG BILLS DISAPPEARING

Soon the old large-size paper money will have passed out of circulation to become a curio, like "continentals," Confederate currency and the large penny of antiquity. Collectors who have been promising themselves to put by a representative assortment of the old currency must make haste or it will be too late. It would be interesting to know how many of the bills will never be redeemed for that reason.

About the length of time the two sizes of paper money will be in concurrent circulation the treasury department has just changed its mind. When the diminutive bills made their debut over banking counters it was said the large notes would remain in circulation until worn out from handling.

Now the treasury department announces it will take the old money out of circulation as rapidly as it reaches the federal reserve banks without regard to its condition. This action, however, will apply only to United States notes, gold and silver certificates and federal reserve notes and including denomination of $50. But within two months the arbiters of currency fashions hope to be able also to discontinue printing national banknotes in the old sizes.

All in all, the public has found the anticipation of two sizes of paper money worse than the realization. Probably no more bills have been lost than before little ones were shuffled among the large and few persons have so many they suffer inconvenience in counting them.

PERHAPS THIS WILL HELP

A small city in Pennsylvania has taken out group insurance for all of its municipal workers for the purpose of promoting loyalty, efficiency and honesty among them. In this lies a most interesting experiment.

Since the day the first jobholder consented to having the taxpayers support him, the public has been asking itself why there should not be as much loyalty and enterprise among public employees as among workers for private business. Perhaps there is, although the public will never admit it, but if there isn't the responsibility does not rest with the jobholders alone.

Introspection, just a little of it, will prove to any community that the rewards for faithful service are higher in private business than in the government service. Salary increases come with less frequency, loyalty and efficiency are no guarantee of permanency of employment, pensions are less liberal and general and the chances of worthwhile promotion are far less in the public's service.

Why should the taxpayer expect anything different when a jobholder devotes more of his time and talents to politics than to his job? Is it any wonder the policy of "the public be damned" exists where public servants owe their positions to the politicians rather than to the people who only pay their salaries?

How does static know you have company.

Next to Mr. Voliva's world, perhaps the flattest thing is Eddie Cantor when he bursts into print.

Oranges and lemons now taste about the same, due to scientific ripening and so forth, but there remains a slight difference in the shape.

A LONG WAY TO GO

Uncle Sam's Surgeon General Cummings says that at the present rate of progress it will take 51 years before the rural communities of this country will be receiving what he considers necessary health service. Last year the public health service co-operated in 204 counties in seventeen states. Sky scraping office buildings, airplanes, and other spectacular evidences of modern day civilization do not tell a complete story. There is plenty of the most important kind of community work yet to be done. The United States, advanced as it is, has a long way to go.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 24. To know that the world is small, come to the edge of the Pacific and talk to New York friends, as easily as though they were in the same room. Or call London and talk unconscious of the fact that your voice transformed into an electric impulse, flashes across the Atlantic ocean in less than a sixtieth of a second, through the ether.

Next, to realize that the world, this country especially, is big, explore the map on your railroad time table, and look for Tucson, Arizona. You find it a couple of inches away from Los Angeles, and decide to drive there some afternoon to investigate the much praised climate, which Colonel Boyce Thompson says is the best on this or any other planet.

You discover that the distance is 700 miles, and decide to take one of Paul Shoup's Southern Pacific trains, that make the trip in a night.

This West Coast supplies everything that you want in the way of new ideas, religions, queer beliefs. Many gentlemen teach you to explore hidden resources of your brain, and exchange them for cash, right away.

One, enthusiastic, teaches something new called "Brain Breathing." By brain breathing, it seems, you can get rich rapidly.

A mature lady, leader of a religious sect, is annoyed by a charge of murder.

The gentleman in the case was put out of the way with poison. He had taken up another religion. But, without fail, "he will be resurrected after publication of 'The Great Sixth Seal'." That "seal" you must know, contains the secrets of the universe. For it reviving Mr. Ruzzio would be child's play.

One unfortunate father, convinced that his religious teachers could bring his daughter back to life, kept the child's body on ice for more than a year.

The religious lady accused of murder, according to witnesses, said she received orders from the Angel Gabriel, but was told not to shed blood. Hence the poison.

Strange to us now, such nonsense was part of religious belief, through all time, until recently. Thousands were put to death, tortured, burned, for not choosing the "only true religion."

Protestants burned Catholics, Catholics burned Protestants and Catholics burned Jews, first torturing them to get their money.

Mohammedans killed everybody, except Mohammedans.

The order to slay and spare not, coming from Heaven, was nothing exceptional.

This glorious coast from Seattle to San Diego, the land of good roads, faces a family problem less acute in other parts of the country.

The problem is "which cars shall go into the garage which shall be parked in the driveway?" Here, the two-car, three-car and four-car family is the rule.

A family with only one car is primitive.

In 1933 Chicago will celebrate in grand style the "Century of Progress."

And there is much to celebrate. Rufus C. Dawes, brother of our ambassador to England, president of the Chicago celebration, says "man is becoming smarter all the time, and because of science the world is a much better place than ever before."

Most gratifying is the fact that man is becoming less brutal all the time. Now if you want to find murder in the name of religion, the vilest beliefs of superstitions, you go into the gutters of ignorance. You no longer find such things on the throne or in law-making bodies.

S. T. Mather, dead in Boston, deserves a monument as high as the tallest of the magnificent trees protected and preserved by him as director of the National Park Service.

Once a worker on the old New York Morning Sun, in Dana's time, later a prosperous business man, Mr. Mather devoted his life and fortune to the extension and development of our national parks.

Born in California, a product of American public schools and the University of California, Mather would want no monument from men. He knew, as every modern man worth while knows, that the only monument worth while is work well done.

Thanks to Mather's work, this nation, for all earthly time, will possess the most magnificent parks on the surface of the globe.

Love to All—Ye have heard that it hath been said, Thou shalt love thy neighbor and hate thine enemy. But I say unto you, Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you and pray for them which despitefully use you and persecute you; That ye may be the children of your Father which is in heaven.—Matthew 5:43, 44, 45.

We hear that automobiles are ruining the younger generation. This is wrong. The younger generation is ruining the automobiles. Ask any father of a flock of boys and girls and only one car.

My Dear Hints and Dints: While turning back the pages of other days, so to speak, I came across the following poem by one of Kentucky's most brilliant sons, and lawyers, and I know that it will cause many of the old (?) boys' and girls' hearts to raise a bit as it did mine and set them dreaming of the days of long ago: The moonlight falls the softest. In Kentucky; The summer days come oftener. In Kentucky; Friendship is the strongest. Love's light glows the longest. In Kentucky; The song birds are the sweetest. In Kentucky; The thoroughbreds are fleetest. In Kentucky; Mountains tower proudest. Thunder peels the loudest. The landscape is the grandest—And politics—the damndest. In Kentucky. OLD KENTUCKY.

We have noticed in our time that the worse the crook the more money they seem to be able to get together to hire a squad of lawyers when they finally get into a court for trial. Do you know how many are in a squad?

STARTED FOR MISSOURI A little village in Massachusetts had a farmer who owned a mule, and set great store on this rare-in-New England animal. One day the mule disappeared, and after a vain search the owner offered a dollar reward for it. The village lackwit an hour later appeared leading the stray mule. After handing over the dollar, the owner, curious to know how it was done, asked the finder the secret. "W-a-l," replied the mentally deficient one, "I just thought where would I go if I wuz a mule, an' I went there, an' he had."

Sometimes it is not necessary to make any apologies, but it is very necessary often to make a very complete explanation.

Appreciation "I like to work," said a man, "particularly when I have a feeling that I am accomplishing something." It is important that we have the sense of getting somewhere. The tragedy is that many are doing excellent work, but nobody whose opinion really carries weight takes the trouble to say so.

Why do we hesitate to express approval, interest? Why do we assume that someone else is saying the kind word that we neglected to speak?

Men who for years have given outstanding service to their communities and to their industries often quietly confess that their deepest and most disturbing wonder is whether or not they enjoy the good opinion of those they are striving to help. The temptation is to become cynical and quiet, but their spirit is supported by a philosophical understanding of human nature, and so they go on.

The world loses much by indifference. Communities lose, industries lose, employers lose.

American Eagle Endangered, As Press Debates Its Morals

Audubon Societies Appeal To Congress To Save National Symbol Despite Its Alleged Bad Habits.

Bills for protection of the bald eagle, which have been introduced in both houses of Congress at the request of the Audubon societies, are debated not entirely without levity in view of the charges which have been made against the character of the bird. Despite these charges, cost commentators feel that the prototype of the national emblem should not be permitted to become extinct.

Those who feel that a fine consideration of moral values should be weighed against emotionalism quote a statement by Benjamin Franklin to the effect that the bald eagle "is a bird of bad moral character" and "does not get his living honestly." Franklin also said: "You may have seen him perched on some dead tree, where, too lazy to fish for himself, he watches the labors of the fishing hawk; and when at last that diligent bird has taken a fish, and is bearing it to his nest for the support of his mate and young ones, the bald eagle pursues him and takes it from him."

But the SAN ANTONIO EXPRESS is not one of these. "The bills should be passed at this session," it says, and then points out the importance of the Eagle in American history: When the American Revolution was drawing to a close the Continental Congress considered providing a Great Seal of the United States. The matter had been discussed at intervals for several years, but all designs submitted had been rejected. A committee appointed in June, 1782, entrusted the task of devising a national seal to Willing B. Barton, brother of Benjamin S. Barton, a naturalist. He offered a design in which the American or bald eagle was prominent; and with a few changes it was adopted on June 20, 1782. So far as known, the Great Seal was used for the first time on a commission dated September 17, 1782, giving Gen. George Washington authority to arrange for exchanging prisoners of war with British commanders. In 1795 the United States began coining gold eagles and half eagles, respectively, valued at ten and five dollars. The coins were followed by quarter-eagles (1796) and double eagles (1849).

"The majority of Americans," in the opinion of the CANTON DAILY NEWS, "would welcome favorable action by Congress on the bill. It might be a much more difficult matter to bring back the eagle from near-extinction than it was, for instance, to rescue the buffalo and other species of big game. The legislators at Washington would be wise to avoid such a possibility. What would the rest of the world think, incidentally, of a country with nothing but pictures of its national bird?" The Daily News also states: "Alaska encourages the hunter by a bounty of a dollar a pair for eagle feet. In that territory the eagle is accused, undoubtedly with justice, of capturing salmon. The salmon industry is the life of Alaska, and the catches of the eagle are negligible in comparison. At least they are a poor excuse for extermination of the bird, which is inevitable under present conditions. The eagle fares little better in the United States—where protective laws do exist, they are disregarded with slight chance of punishment. The nests are rifled and the birds slain ruthlessly."

It is recalled by the ERIE DISPATCH-HERALD that "this species is specifically protected by law in five States, and in 39 others is safeguarded by inference under the Audubon law, which protects non-game birds." That paper concludes: "Enactment of the law at this session of Congress will be taken for granted, but whether it can get by the Supreme Court is another question. Previous Federal laws to protect birds have been declared to conflict with the Constitution. It would seem anomalous to suggest that the government does not have the power to protect the American eagle. At any rate there is no question about the authority of Congress to stop the killing of these birds in Alaska."

Referring to the investigations in Alaska of Dr. T. Gilbert Pearson, president of the National Association of Audubon Societies, the NEW YORK EVENING POST remarks: "The eagle is popularly supposed to catch many fawns, lambs and foxes in fox farms, but Dr. Pearson is convinced that such cases are rare. He watched them for years in sheep country, and never saw a bird attack a lamb, though he has seen them carry off dead lambs. They feed, he says, almost entirely on fish and carrion. Congress, unfortunately for the gratification of the bird lovers, is powerless to do anything to prevent the destruction of the eagles save in Federal territory."

Advocates of hunters that "when shooting eagles they should be careful not to shoot a bald one," the CHATTANOOGA NEWS comments: "The eagle is not a particularly useful bird; the only reason for protecting him is patriotism." The News adds that it is "difficult to work up much of a literature on the subject," and concludes: "It is not our desire, however, to dampen the patriotic ardor of Senator Norbeck. Eagles, they say, fly high, and we doubt if our nimble could hit one. Nevertheless, take warning. Lay off bald eagles."

Lawrence County Wins Awards For Exhibits Of Wool

Number Of Awards Won For Display Of Wool From County At State Products Show

Returning Friday night from Harrisburg, where he attended the state farm products show, Lawrence County Farm Agent H. R. McCulloch gives the following report on the wool awards given at the show.

For medium wool six fleece county exhibits, Lawrence county had second place. The counties in order of awards were Susquehanna, Lawrence, Mercer and Washington.

For fine wool, six fleece county exhibits, Lawrence county had third place. The awards were given to Washington, Green, Lawrence and Mercer counties.

This county had first and second places in the three-eighths blood ewe fleece and first on the Merino Weather exhibits.

The state farm products show closed Friday. It had lasted for five days. The wool exhibits were the only products displayed from this county.

Charge Officers Of Club With Contempt

District Attorney McKay Of Mercer County Hails Eagles Club Trustees Into Court

MERCER, Pa., Jan. 25.—A hearing was held in court here Thursday afternoon on the charge of contempt of court made by District Attorney Leo McKay against the trustees of the Eagles club of Sharon. The court made no order at this time. It is claimed that on recent calls the officers found bottles in the club and on the last call had to wait some time before the door was opened for them. Ten bottles were placed in evidence by the attorney to substantiate the claim of his office that the trustees, while they may not allow selling, are permitting it to be brought into the club rooms.

The club was one of nine in the county which were placed under court order not to allow liquor on the premises. The trustees told the court they had done everything in their power to prevent any liquor possession in the club rooms. There is not sufficient evidence, said the attorney, to warrant asking a padlocking order.

NEW TRIAL DENIED

In the suit of E. W. Filer vs. F. P. Filer, both of Mercer, a new trial asked is refused.

The jury awarded the plaintiff $15,000 at a hearing of May last. A new trial was asked at once. The suit was brought to collect for the death of the wife of the plaintiff killed four years ago in an auto accident when the defendant was driving.

Sue Over Crash

Charles J. Stewart, a minor, and Charles J. Stewart his father of Slippery Rock, sue Harold S. Orr of Mercer for $10,000 each for injuries sustained by the boy in an auto accident of August 13th last on the Blacktown road.

GRAND JURY ENDS SITTING

The January Grand Jury made report last evening of inspection of the county buildings. The county home buildings and hospital there is reported to be in splendid condition.

Attorney Makes Visit To Donnie, His Client

Attorney Ben Rosenbloom, retained by Joseph Crawford, 69, father of Irene Schroeder, the blue-eyed alleged gun-girl, to start habeas corpus proceedings to obtain possession of her son Donnie, 4, today visited Donnie in the detention home and finding that the little lad is well taken care of abandoned his plan to obtain the little chap.

When Attorney Rosenbloom, who is a big, jovial but keen attorney from Wheeling, knocked on the door, Jack Dunlap, juvenile court officer, opened the door and courteously inquired as to the visitor.

The lawyer showed Dunlap who he was and also showed he had been retained to look after Donnie's end of the case and was immediately ushered into a room where the bright little lad was playing.

Jack, who has been, with Mrs. Dunlap, taking excellent care of his charge, introduced Donnie to Attorney Rosenbloom.

The little chap shook hands with Rosenbloom, stared at him a minute then leaped upon a chair thence to a table.

The attorney handed the little boy a half dollar and the little chap started to recite, while he stood on the table.

Little Jack Hornet sat in a corner, eating a Christmas pie.

He put in his thumb, pulled out a plum and cried:

Oh, what a happy boy am I.

ported to be in splendid condition. Former grand juries are commended for their interest in securing this much needed institution. The jail is reported to have been found in excellent condition. The jury went on record as favoring the use of the room adjoining the sheriff's office for use of that official by cutting a door through providing means of access. The court is petitioned that action be taken on this recommendation inserted by previous juries, the return reads: A sidewalk along the north side of South Diamond street and mechanical stokers for the county power plant are also recommended.

PAROLE OFFICER REPORTS

During the year 1929, Parole Officer Rev. W. T. K. Thompson of Mercer county collected fines and costs totaling $27,630.65.

The amount breaks all records for collection of this fund in the nine years that the officer has been in charge of this work. The amount will easily cover the criminal court costs for the year.

The fines paid to the county treasurer total $15,763. The costs amounted to $12,867.72.

The officer in his nine years has handled over 1,000 prisoners. During 1929 he reached his highest total of 157 paroled and probated. He has 183 on parole now. During the year he wrote 431 letters and visited 150 homes. In this county the bootleggers are paroled when half their jail sentence is served on condition that they pay the fines and costs assessed them.

The major portion of this amount is turned over in monthly and weekly payments just as it is earned.

COUNTY SAVES MONEY

Housing prisoners in the county jail rather than sending them to the workhouse or penitentiary has been a matter of great economy for Mercer county.

In 1929 the county saved $9,900 over the workhouse and penitentiary bill of 1927, which amounted to $35,416 that of 1929 amounted to $25,515. In 1928 the savings due to the same economy program amounted to $6,800. This savings has been possible due to the co-operation of Sheriff Dan Callahan. The jail is overcrowded all the time to make this possible but the sheriff is delighted despite the extra work so long as the savings keep up.

The new auditorium along with four additional class rooms to the annex of the main building were erected at a cost of $50,000.

WIN WOOL PRIZES

Mercer county won two firsts at the State Products wool show in county exhibit is the word from Harrisburg. A number of individual exhibitors were also winners.

Grundy Host Today To All Candidates For Governorship

(International News Service) WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Every man who has been mentioned as a possible candidate for the Pennsylvania gubernatorial nomination has been invited to a dinner Senator Joseph R. Grundy (R) of Pennsylvania, is holding in Philadelphia tonight except James J. Davis, secretary of labor, Davis remarked today.

"Of course I won't go because I wasn't invited," Davis said. Recently the secretary withdrew his name from the Pennsylvania campaign with the announcement he can remain in the Hoover cabinet.

MID-YEAR SENIOR CLASS RECEIVES DIPLOMAS LAST NIGHT

turesome spirit is needed. Frontier tolerance and liberalism are in demand. A high idealism was never more vital nor opportunities more abundant."

It was a scholarly address that the Allegheny professor gave, and there were 1,200 or more present to hear it. Seated on the stage with the speakers, Principal F. L. Orth, Dr. C. C. Green and representatives of the New Castle school district was the graduating class, 158 strong. The bleacher-like platform upon which the seniors sat and the stage scenery were set off with the class symbol, a large gray '30 on a background of red.

Open Program

Under the direction of Joseph Replogle, instrumental music supervisor for the city schools, the senior high school orchestra rendered the opening number, entitled "Finlandia," and the closing exit march.

The invocation was offered by the Rev. C. S. Bennett, pastor of the First Christian church. Dr. Bennett also pronounced the benediction.

Local Progress

Following the invocation Miss Emily Parker, salutatorian for the class, delivered her address on "The Same of New Castle." Miss Parker took the development of the Beaver, Mahoning and Shenango waterways as her theme, speaking highly in favor of the proposed canalization. "The success or failure of the improvement of these rivers," Miss Parker said, "means the life or death of our industrial community." Her address was timely and a most enlightening one.

Next was Dr. McClean's message. He was introduced by Superintendent Green. Referring to the frontier spirit he said: "You can rest assured that if you seek the thrills and the reward of the pioneer, the opportunities are open. The life of the pioneer in any field of adventure is not an easy one. The easy-going, timid soul remains well behind the first lines of advance, but the adventurer has the joy and satisfaction of blazing the trail, and this is enough."

The speaker then launched into a full discussion of the pioneer spirit relative to education, industry, race relationships, political and international relations and in thought.

He designated education as a "productive process" and not a "consumptive process," as so many think it today. He illustrated with the progress of the day of modern day youth hunt the easy, high-paying jobs, where everything is standardized and smooth-running. It is in the other positions that chances are offered for pioneering, he said.

Issues Challenge

Industry of today was given considerable consideration by the speaker. He said that the relationships and political and economic relationships. Thought, his last point, was where principal emphasis was laid. "If we are not on the frontier of action, then we at least must do some adventuring in our thinking."

Then in conclusion Dr. McClean turned to the graduates and, facing them, challenged them to be new pioneers.

Said he: "May you be new pioneers, finding a place in your lives for some social adventuring. To the end that life itself may be transformed into a brilliant adventure, rather than squandering, and dribbled away in fleeting non-entities, which leave you cold and ashamed at the end. And may the pioneers of all the ages call you to the heroic, challenging you with the deeper meanings of life, to make adventurous romances of the commonplace, and to that end

"Thine be the prophets vision thine the exultation, the divine insanity of noble minds. That never jitters or aches but labors and endures and waits till all that it foresees it finds Or what it does not find creates."

Presents Award

Featuring the evening program was the piano solo by Charles Freeman, Jr., a member of the class, and the presentation of awards by the Daughters of 1812 and the Business and Professional Women's club. The former, represented by Mrs. Charles Greer, made a presentation of $10 in gold to Miss Irene Perry, for her winning essay in the U. S. history class competition. In behalf of the business women, Miss Nansy Bechtel, their president, presented their award of ten gold dollars to Miss Carrie Gibbons, for her general excellence in English during the high school course.

The valedictory was delivered by Miss Geneva Hazen, who spoke on "What Price Progress." She spoke of the luxuries that we are enjoying and said that the hope of the human race lies in how it uses its blessings. "It will be for posterity to determine what the outcome will be. Let us ascend the steps of progress and proceed."

Miss Hazen was followed by Dr. Green, who spoke in behalf of the school teachers, principals and authorities. Dr. Green congratulated the graduates and their parents. "Twelve years ago you gave us these young men and women and as we turn them back to you tonight we hope they will be enriched and developed in intellect, body and soul," said the superintendent.

The program had about reached its end and time had come for the presentation of diplomas, an act which marks the formal graduation. Daniel B. Woolcock, president of the board of education offered the new-style certificates to the 158 members of the group after he had extended the board's congratulations and best wishes.

The benediction was then pronounced.

Through the kindness of Mr. New it was possible to transfer the prisoners from the one train to the other without even going into the railroad station, and again at Cleveland a close connection was made. Here the agent of the New York Central, a Mr. Schmidt, arranged to have a special bus backed up to the rear of the train and the party from New Castle went into it and spirited away to the Erie station. At the Erie station there was a crowd of people but little jostling.

With all the business cares of the trip on his hands, Sheriff Johnston found time for little else, and the care of the prisoners fell upon County Detective Peck Lee and Lieutenant Thomas Boettner of the state police. A system of guarding was arranged whereby two guards were on duty every minute of the 24 hours and each of the officers did their tricks of duty all the time.

Cares For Irene. Mrs. McKibben's duty was to care for Irene and this she did all during the trip. When the woman was sick Mrs. McKibben was with her and saw that she was cared for and as a result of the constant care Mrs. McKibben had but little chance to sleep. For her entire trip was one of arduous duty and she needs a week's vacation to get caught up with her sleep.

The cooperation of the city, county and state authorities was responsible for the efficient manner in which the trip was handled and as a result of this cooperation, Irene and Glenn are in the county jail awaiting trial.

No makeshift sentiment or pseudo sympathy will be allowed to interfere with the care of the prisoners. Sheriff Frank N. Johnston has declared that they will be given the same treatment as any major prisoners would receive but that no privileges would be allowed. They are charged with "murder," said Sheriff Johnston, "and it is my duty to see that they are kept safely until the authorities try them. This I intend to do."

Arrive At Jail. Here she comes," the shout went up as the big sedan panted furiously around the curve on the court house hill, Friday evening, and swirled into the court house driveway, narrowly missing many of the crowd who tried to get into the narrow arway at the same time.

The car jerked to a stop. A squad of police stationed at the jail entrance pushed and shoved against the throng trying to block the passage to the jail; Irene and her captors literally jumped from the car and ran toward the little door which leads into the rear of the Sheriff's residence and thence into the jail. The door swung open for an instant, they passed through and then swung shut again. It was all over. Irene was in the Lawrence county jail before most of those outside knew what was happening.

Dague's Car Arrives. Following closely on the heels of the first car came the second one containing Dague, and his custodians. The same scene which had been previously enacted was gone through. But there seemed to be a little less hurry with Glenn. He too was dragged towards the door with his captors, and hurriedly taken into the jail. While Irene was being escorted up stairs to her cell, Glenn was taken to his place of confinement on the floor below.

Then the crowd closed in, rushing the door through which the two famous prisoners had passed. Frantically they beat on it in an effort to get inside. Flashlights boomed outside. Dague had opportunity to photograph Irene and Dague as they rushed toward the jail, the photographers did the next best thing. They took flashlights of the disappointed crowd outside. The popping and flashing of the lights continued for several minutes.

In the meantime, scores of newspaper men and photographers pleaded to get into the sheriff's office, pleading for a chance to talk to Irene, and to photograph her in her new home.

No Visitors. Sheriff Frank N. Johnston was adamant in his refusal to permit this to even allow them inside the lit office, which already was filled to overflowing by those who had been there waiting and the few who had managed to smuggle in with the guards who accompanied the prisoners.

"No one will be permitted to see her tonight," Sheriff Johnston stated and he meant it.

Finally the crowd outside began to die away. A few of the curious still lingered. Perhaps they thought Irene and Glenn would be brought out and stood up so they could see her. Maybe they thought she would be permitted to tell them how pleased she was with the tremendous reception she had received. At any rate, they hung around, fearful that something else might happen and they would miss it.

But the great moment of excitement was over. The chief object of interest had passed from their view. While it lasted, it was a great moment. To one who did not know what was going on, it would have been thought that someone was tossing twenty dollar gold pieces away. Men and women fought frantically to get near the jail doors, and the squad of police assigned to keep them back, fought just as frantically to keep a passage way open from the cars to the door.

In Sheriff's Office. Inside the sheriff's office there was another and to the arrival of the prisoners. As a commotion was heard outside the door to the sheriff's receiving office opened. Through it came Johnston, Irene and Boettner. They took five steps to the big iron door which leads to the jailhouse.

"The keys!" demanded Johnston and at this juncture, Irene, a short, rattle plump and good looking girl turned and smiled.

A smile played around her face. She was attired neatly. She didn't give vent to any display of the rage she exhibited in Arizona.

Just as she was being led through the door, someone outside shouted: "Here he comes!"

The big form of County Detective Peck Lee came through the doorway and alongside of him—Glenn Dague!

Like Irene, he was not exposed to the curiosity of the crowd which had gathered outside to see him in his plight but was rushed, yes, hurried through the doorway to the jailhouse.

Minnie McKibben, policewoman, who had removed her coat, entered the jailhouse and accompanied Irene upstairs to the cell which had been used by Dorothy Pegran, acquitted for the murder of Marine Sergeant Phil Tulley.

Dague, accompanied by Boettner and Johnston, was incarcerated in a cell on the north side of the lower floor. Dague was asked to pose for a photograph. He seemed amiable.

The sheriff asked him to step to the front of his cell and Glenn did. He wore a cream colored shirt, long black four-in-hand tie and black trousers. He has a light moustache.

OFFICERS BRING PRISONERS FROM TRAIN IN AUTOS

switched at the last moment and the armed cars sent to the seventh ward station. Even the last minute change did not keep the news entirely secret and several hundred men and women crowded about the officers.

As the prisoners were taken off the train about 15 photographers who had boarded the train at Youngstown rushed for elevated positions for pictures, the crowd rushed forward to the train and the officers were caught up in a vortex of swirling humanity. In the excitement the prisoners were jostled somewhat but the officers who were on the train and the supplementing group of P. & L. E. officers and city police soon cleared a way to the cars.

Crowd At Jail

At the jail the mob scene was repeated. Hundreds struggled to get a look at the prisoners and the officers again had to force their way through. As they arrived in the jail Sheriff Johnston wisely declared that nobody would be admitted to the jail last night, not even the newspapers.

From Phoenix, Ariz., to Cleveland, O., the trip was without incident. Save for an occasional fellow traveler, peering in the door of the carefully guarded stateroom, the prisoners were kept away from the world. At Cleveland the first indication of public interest was shown and from there on the crowds kept getting larger. It was a trying time for the officers in charge of the party, but they kept their heads and got through with a minimum of excitement.

Trip Well Handled

From New Castle to Phoenix and return the trip was well handled. The business arrangements of the trip were in the hands of Sheriff Frank N. Johnston and long experience in such things resulted in a smooth handling of affairs.

The tickets, reservations, meals and all other arrangements were in his hands and not a bobble resulted. At Phoenix he saw to it that while the prisoners and some of the officers hurried to Chandler to avoid the service of writs, he arranged to have reservations for the rest of the party at Phoenix. At Kansas City, Sheriff Johnston was visited by the terminal trainmaster, W. E. New, who is a personal friend of the sheriff's, and Mr. New arranged to have a close transfer made at Chicago.

Close Connections

Through the kindness of Mr. New it was possible to transfer the prisoners from the one train to the other without even going into the railroad station, and again at Cleveland a close connection was made. Here the agent of the New York Central, a Mr. Schmidt, arranged to have a special bus backed up to the rear of the train and the party from New Castle went into it and spirited away to the Erie station. Contest Held For Local Contestants

Three Speakers Chosen To Represent New Castle In Electric Contests

Elimination contest for local entrants in the National Employees Speaking contest, sponsored by the National Electric Light Association, was held last night in the auditorium of the Penn-Ohio Electric company, Louis B. Round, district manager of the Pennsylvania Power company, presided at the meeting.

Nine speakers were entered. They were D. M. Arnold, R. D. Kiser, Hubert Cummings, W. T. Donovan, N. J. Hunt, W. C. Dickson, E. Don McGoun, H. P. Meehan and E. T. Tinsman. All spoke upon the subject of The Electric Utility's Contribution to the County, State and Nation. All of the speeches showed a good grasp of the subject and were well delivered.

Hubert Cummings, N. J. Hunt and E. Don McGoun were declared winners of the contest, in the order named, by the judges. The winners were selected to compete in another elimination contest, which will be held soon with Sharon.

The judges were A. W. Chilton, secretary of the chamber of commerce; E. J. Beal, executive manager of the Electric Light League, Youngstown, and J. P. Caldwell, of The News.

Speakers gave some interesting data on electricity and its application to every day needs, along the lines of light, power and utilities. Valuable prizes are to be awarded to the winners of the final contest, for which the local contest last night was a preliminary.

Veterans Seek Later Date To Prove War Claim

Uncompensated Men Petition For New Period In Which To File Claim

MANY HERE WOULD RECEIVE BENEFITS

Petitions are being circulated in New Castle by uncompensated disabled veterans of the World War, in an effort to obtain compensation for veterans who, as a result of their war service, have contracted tuberculosis or other affection since January, 1925; but who have been denied compensation because of alleged arbitrary provisions in the Veterans' Act of 1924.

The veterans are asking that January 1, 1930, instead of January 1, 1925, be named the last date by which documentary proof of their disabilities need be filed in order to obtain compensation.

Petitions are also being circulated throughout the country from veterans' hospitals at various points. The veterans hope to obtain the time extension by means of a bill sponsored by Representative Hughes.

Under the act of 1924, veterans who contracted afflictions from war service up to 1925 were allowed compensation if they filed documentary proof by that date. Since then, backers of the movement to procure aid for those who are not receiving benefits, declare that thousands have contracted tuberculosis from being gassed at the front; or they are suffering from gunshot wounds, which have produced infection, or kindred ills.

Although many of these veterans are cared for in government hospitals, they are constantly distressed by the knowledge that their families, denied their support, are striving to maintain an existence.

Secretary Charles E. Allen of the Lawrence County Chapter, American Red Cross, who comes in contact with more of these disabled veterans than any other individual in New Castle, states that there are a great many "Veterans' Castles," who have been disabled because of injury or infection contracted during the war, who are denied assistance by their government. It is true that they can receive hospitalization in U. S. Veterans' hospitals, but they are constantly distressed by the knowledge that their families, denied their support, are striving to maintain an existence.

Savers' action came as a surprise. In his opinion he recommended that a new jail and sheriff's residence be built somewhere in Waynesburg near the present court house.

Thayer Case Is Nearing End

Trial At Canton May Reach Jury Early Next Week

(International News Service) CANTON, O., Jan. 25.—Taking of testimony in the bribery trial of Albert L. Thayer, New Castle, Pa., architect, here was expected to be completed today. The case will, from present indications, go to the jury Tuesday or Wednesday of next week.

Thayer, who is accused of having solicited a $7,500 bribe from George F. S. Melbourne, general contractor, in connection with the construction of the new million-dollar Molly Stark tuberculosis sanitarium, ended his testimony last night.

The architect was followed on the witness stand by Dr. H. E. Zerner, New Castle, one of four witnesses with whose testimony the defense hoped to build an alibi that Thayer was in Canada at the time the alleged bribery was negotiated. Judge Krichbaum, however, upheld a motion of the state and the alibi witnesses were not permitted to testify because when the defense is based on an alibi the state must know of it in advance to the trial.

Dr. Zerner, however, testified as character witness, as did George Winter, S. D. Pearson, H. E. Zerner, H. Rev. W. W. Smith, John T. McBride, L. Marvin and R. J. Tully, all of New Castle, and Dr. W. E. Wallace of Westminister college.

Testimonial Dinner For Grundy Tonight

Senator Grundy Expected To Make First Speech Seeking Election

(International News Service) PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 25.—U. S. Senator Joseph R. Grundy is expected to make the opening speech of his campaign for election tonight at a testimonial dinner given him at the Manufacturers' Club here.

A radio hook-up of all the principal stations in the state has been arranged for broadcasting his speech and that industrial leaders of the state will be present, namely: Governor John S. Fisher, Mayor Harry A. Mackey, John S. Fisher, a former president of the Manufacturers' Club and Thomas R. Armstrong, president of the club.

No definite political announcement is expected but local and state politicians are watching for the newly appointed senator's keynote of the impending campaign.

No political conference here in recent years has attracted the attention that is being given the dinner tonight.

Parents-Teachers Meet At Moravia

Excellent Program Is Presented—Other News Of Moravia Stop

(Special To The News) MORAVIA STOP, Jan. 25.—What proved to be one of the very best P. T. A. meetings of the year was held at the Moravia School house on Thursday evening. A good crowd was present and the subject of the evening was handled in an interesting and instructive manner.

Three of our teacher members were present and took part. Miss Shaffer's subject was "Hereditary."

News Of The Granges

Westfield Grange officers were installed on Monday evening January 6th with Frank W. Jenkins of Big Beaver Grange and his assistants, Mrs. Jenkins, Mrs. Ruth Douthitt, Jean Gilkey, Mrs. A.M. Doak, Homer Doak, Mrs. Norma Patterson and Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Foster.

East Brook Grange officers were installed on Thursday evening January 9th by David F. Kyle, Past Master of Lawrence County Pomona. He was assisted by Mrs. Scott Munnell, Past Master of Willard Grange, Mrs. Inez Hunt and Mrs. David F. Kyle, with Mrs. W. O. Mayberry, past master of East Brook Grange at the piano. The meeting was held in the auditorium of the East Brook high school.

Big Beaver Grange officers were installed on Tuesday January 14th in their hall. The installation was in charge of James Kelso, past master of Westfield Grange as installing officer and was assisted by Mrs. J. A. Weller, Mrs. David Woods, Mrs. Sharp Fullerton, Mr. and Mrs. Wylie Brewster, Miss Frances Fullerton, the last three named furnished the music with Miss F. K. Kline at the piano. Every officer of Big Beaver Grange was present. The installation was very impressive and interesting. Ladies of Grange served refreshments.

Mahoning Valley Grange officers of the subordinate and juvenile granges were installed in a joint installation by Pomona Past Master Kyle and his assistants. Miss Sara McComb of the East New Castle Consolidated Schools gave an excellent talk on "Environment." But, the treat of the evening was the readings given by Miss Alberta Brenner of the Shenango Consolidated Schools. Miss Brenner is a reader of marked ability and her interpretation of J. Whitcomb Riley's works was wonderfully clear and amusing. She gave the "Bear Story" and "I Ain't Gone to Cry No More."

It was decided to buy a new supply of books for the library and Miss Sara Renick and Lola Shaffer were appointed to attend to the matter.

MORAVIA STOP NOTES

Robert Long and Arthur Grines spent Tuesday evening in Beaver Falls.

Miss Angie Knight formerly of Moravia has accepted a position in Youngstown.

Jacob Bowers of Beaver Co., spent Tuesday with his brother John Bowers of Moravia.

Miss Lola Shaffer of Spring Stop was a dinner guest of Goldie Young, Thursday evening.

Mrs. John Bowers and Mrs. Ernest Locke were guests of Mrs. John Long Thursday afternoon.

Goldie Young and Lola Shaffer spent Wednesday evening with Mrs. Charles Young of Slippery Rock Stop.

Those of our High School pupils who were fortunate enough to be exempt from semester tests are enjoying a few days vacation.

Mrs. Harold Currie and daughters Betty, June and Winifred spent Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Currie's brother Nathan Knight of New Castle. Betty remained to visit a few days. The others returned Wednesday night.

Quite a serious accident occurred on Kline Hill, Tuesday evening when a sled loaded with boys dived in order to avoid an automobile coming up the hill. Harold Brown had his head so badly cut that it required six stitches to close the wound. Merle McConahy received minor injuries.

Government Victim Of "Hoax" Official Recognition Given

(International News Service) PITTSBURGH, Jan. 25.—Official recognition that the government was the victim of a hoax whereby one man took the sentence of four months in Erie county jail for another, convicted of larceny, was made in federal court here today.

The official "admission" that the court had been victimized came when Federal Judge R. M. Gibson signed an order that the $4,000 cash bond released when Jay Jarvis was sentenced to prison on January 31, be returned to the U. S. clerk of courts.

Jarvis is alleged to have taken the place of one Stanley Wells, reputed wealthy Canadian run runner, who was arrested last fall on Lake Erie and gave the name of Jarvis.

The alleged hoax was discovered when the officer who had arrested Wells and thought him in prison saw him at Port Stanley, Ontario. An inquiry revealed the substitution, investigation of which is still going on.

Bible Class Will Hear Rev. Landis

Rev. George M. Landis will have "The Resurrection of King Tut" as his subject at tomorrow's meeting of the Men's Bible class of the First Baptist church. The class commences at 9:30.

"The Resurrection of King Tut" was a sermon which Rev. Landis delivered when the tomb of the ancient emperor was uncovered and since the class is at present studying the Book of Exodus, a message on this subject will be highly appropriate.

An attendance of 200 men is anticipated tomorrow.

PAIR BROUGHT FROM PHOENIX QUEER TYPE OF CRIMINALS

Two of the queerest criminals ever to be held in a Lawrence County jail, arrived Friday evening when Irene Schroeder and W. Glenn Dague, alleged murderers of Corporal Brady Paul on December 27, 1929, were taken off a P. & L. E. train and rushed to the county jail.

As vicious as rattlesnakes and as mawkishly sentimental as a couple of sophomores, that's Irene and Glenn. To accomplish their purposes they stopped at nothing, and yet on the long trip across the continent from Phoenix, Arizona, one might have thought that they were on a honeymoon.

Honeyed Words

They address each other in the most endearing terms, and yet as they consoling each other at their plight they flashed back to the killers they are and boasted of what they would do if they were attacked.

"We aren't afraid" was their constant boast and somehow one gets the idea that they mean it. Hard clear through they battled their way across the states until finally surrounded by a posse of 100 Arizona men they surrendered.

What their thoughts are of their lawful spouses, they have never said. Glenn's wife, the wife he deserted for the charms of Irene, is teaching school on a small salary in West Virginia to keep her two children. Irene's husband, Homer Schroeder was supposed to have been working in Pittsburgh, Cal., but investigation proved that this was untrue. Neither of them ever mention their spouses and apparently they have no thought for the outside world.

Fate brought together two people of the same calibre when Irene and Glenn met each other. Fatalistic, both of them for they live only for the present. Let the future bring what it may, they have been living for the past few days in each other's company, supremely satisfied to sit hand in hand, laughing at each other's jokes, eating what food was given them, talking about everything but what the officers wanted to know.

Roaming With Richards

Some News, Some Views, But Mostly Just Observations Of Interesting Things Around New Castle

Home again after a 5000 mile ride that was one continuous rush. Five thousand miles in six days isn't such bad traveling, and in this time were two stops, one in El Paso, Texas, and the stay in Phoenix, Arizona, long enough to get Irene Schroeder and Glenn Dague.

The trip looked at the start as though it might offer a few days in Phoenix, Arizona. Instead of that it developed into a race and all we saw of Phoenix was the court house and capitol and a lot of sombreroes.

No wonder the Phoenix citizens rave about their city. They have a right to. It is a glorious climate, a beautiful city, and if ever I get the time and money to go back I'm going.

While you were huddled in camel hair overcoats out here, some of us were lying on the lawn of the Phoenix capitol watching the attendants cut the grass. Date palms and orange trees provided the shade and the sun was so strong enough that a little shade was appreciated.

Snow is unknown in Phoenix, and rain nearly so. It hadn't rained for eight months up to a week before we were there, and the rain was the hardest they had had in seven years. At that it probably was just what we would call a pleasant shower, back here.

Friends of Dr. B. M. Berger, William Veach and Arthur Middleton will rejoice to know that all of them are doing wonderfully well. Mr. Veach has a hotel that is always filled, Dr. Berger has established himself as a specialist, and Arthur Middleton is kept busy running a big garage. And busy as they were they had time to look us up and offer us the use of their cars.

The only trip I got in Phoenix was late at night before the train pulled out. Dr. Berger and Arthur Middleton took a party out to the new Arizona Biltmore hotel and I will not attempt to describe it. It is so gorgeous, so entrancingly beautiful, it seems like a dream of some old Spanish grandee.

El Paso is a real city, hustling and alive, but as snappy a place as this is, it seems to me there is more pep and now and then exchanging some sly remark.

Cruelly Intelligent

No one could be truthful and say that either of them was a moron. They have intelligent faces, good heads, and by their own statement have not dissipated. Neither of them have ever taken a drink, they say, nor do they smoke "I saw too much of it around home to start drinking," said Irene. "I never touch it," said Dague.

Neither do they smoke. If, as had been said, Irene or Dague were heavy smokers of cigarette, they certainly would have shown some indication of it on the trip from Phoenix, but neither of them smoked once during the time they were on the train.

The same thing goes for dope. No dope fiend could lay in a jail as long as they did, and then ride 2,400 miles without evincing a desire for dope, but neither of them has.

Just what the answer is, is hard to say. Just yet there appears to be no reason why two average young people would choose to start out on a life of crime, robbing stores and ending with the murder of an officer, except that they wanted the thrill of the law violation.

Their trip from Phoenix was a constant wooing. Hours on end they sat with their free hands clasped. The others were close together because of a chain of steel attached to a set of handcuffs.

Somewhere near Santa Rosa, New Mexico, Irene developed pains in her stomach. One might have thought that she was at death's door from the solicitude which Dague showed. All night long he stayed up, inquiring how she felt, holding her hands, smoothing her brow, and apparently worrying a great deal.

Tells Girls Loaf and Grow Thin

Olgo Stastny, of Omaha, America's official physician to organized business and professional women, advises young girls to "loaf and grow thin."

Radio Dealers Are Banquetted

Radio Dealers Of Western Pennsylvania And Eastern Ohio Meet Here Last Evening

Approximately 50 radio dealers of Western Pennsylvania and Eastern Ohio were guests of Elliott and Washington at their semi-annual dinner for radio dealers of the district in the Castleton last evening.

Howard A. Richards presided as toastmaster being introduced by John E. Elliott, Mr. Richards in turn introduced the speaker of the evening, John S. Gorman, vice president and general manager of the Gullbransen company. Mr. Gorman spoke on the problems which have confronted radio dealers and manufacturers and what is being done to eliminate them.

Music was furnished during the evening by "Red" Williams with Judy Sypher at the piano. Among those present was Ray F. Hall, representing the New Castle Radio Dealers association.

R. S. Stewart Is Given High Post By Vacuum Oil Co.

Son Of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Stewart Named Manager Of Near East Division In Egypt

Word has been received here by Dr. and Mrs. J. S. Stewart of 709 North Mercer street, of the appointment of their son, Robert S. Stewart, to the position of general manager of the near east division of the Vacuum Oil company.

Mr. Stewart succeeds Dr. Frank Hamilton Henry, who is now a member of the Refined Oil Board of the company in New York. He has been connected with the Vacuum Oil company since 1919, joining the organization immediately after leaving the army where he spent a year and a half in the U. S. air service in France.

Shortly after joining the near east division, he was made manager of the Syrian territory, with headquarters at Beirut. Later he was transferred to the head office in Cairo to assist the general manager, whom he now succeeds.

Mr. Stewart lived with his parents at Latakia, Syria, where he was born and raised, until the age of 16 when he was sent back to the United States for his schooling. He graduated at Geneva college and entered the services of the U. S. during the world war.

Dr. and Mrs. Stewart, his parents, have been retired from the Syrian mission fields and are now residing here.

Attempt To Clear River Channel For Aid To Marooned

(International News Service) PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 25.—The cutter Northland today was to attempt to clear a channel in the Columbia river in order to allow a food ship to proceed to the river communities which were isolated when the river froze. Some of the isolated towns are reported to be in dire need of food.

What a Line of Credit Means

Credit men have a world of trouble with persons whose intentions are of the best, but who simply can't seem to understand what a limited line of credit means.

A credit man, after investigating a customer's credit circumstances and paying habits may decide to allow a customer a line of credit of $100.

It means one thing only: The customer is entitled to owe that particular store for goods purchased a total amount of $100.

That $100 or any less figure that a month's purchases may represent must be paid in full in the calendar month following the month during which purchases are made.

It does not mean that $100 worth of goods can be bought in one month and $15 or $20 paid on the account the following month while another bill of $100 is being run up.

All bills should be paid in full the ensuing month.

The Parent Problem

by GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

Help Lad To Succeed; Don't Suggest Failure

Alonzo comes home with a very low grade in arithmetic. Dad says he thinks Alonzo must be lazy when he is at school. Mother worries silently about poor Alonzo, and grandma joins in with "Now, remember, daddy, what an awful time you had with your arithmetic. I heard your father say he never had a mind for numbers. Why expect so much of the boy? God never made him to be good at figures. He has a head for reading and history, too. The only bad mark the boy has is in arithmetic."

"Dad, I think grandma is right," the mother interposes sympathetically, and Alonzo feels much easier.

"I'll never learn arithmetic," the boy adds. "I hate it. Miss Copper-smith knows very well I won't. I heard her tell the principal the other day that she was sure I could never pass the subject and that she had made up her mind to quit bothering about it. She said I was the best speller in the class and that only Nobby Fritz could beat me in history and reading."

Dad seemed to be convinced. Alonzo surely was and after all his progress in arithmetic depended upon him.

What a comfortable belief for everybody. Miss Copper-smith no longer needs to worry about the lad. Grandma and mother feel sorry for Alonzo, yet their consciences are at ease; and the father feels relieved from further worry about the boy's arithmetic. Anybody can adjust himself to the inevitable.

But there is not one chance out of ten thousand that Alonzo cannot learn arithmetic, or that he even cannot do well at the subject. His hearing and his vision must be fairly good, and his memory can't be bad else he could not excel in other studies.

There are not available any scientific facts which prove conclusively that any child who learns most other subjects well cannot learn arithmetic. It certainly is not fair to the boy to assume that, because he has not succeeded in this subject, there is no reason why he should not. To be sure, punishment or scolding, shame or ridicule will not help the boy's grades in arithmetic. But so long as Alonzo thinks he is feeble-minded in this subject—he will be.

If Alonzo's teacher and his parents were more sensible, they would avoid such degrading suggestions. No one would mention the number disability of daddy nor granddaddy; no one would dwell upon the failure of Alonzo. All would set out patiently and calmly to help the lad succeed.

Let them go back and back with the boy until they find rock-bottom where the boy can succeed. It may be that he has never learned the one hundred simple addition facts or the hundred subtraction facts. Then, if it is fourth grade that he is in, long addition and difficult subtraction, hard of course, impossible for him. Why should he be set to do them? Let him first learn these simple basic facts and discover that he can succeed. With the assurance from success he will feel the urge to strive for more success. Why be so stupid as to stigmatize Alonzo as a failure in arithmetic?

Social Service Day Will Be Observed

New Prayer Books To Be Used
For The First Time Sunday In Episcopal Church

Sunday in Trinity church the new edition of the official book of the Episcopal church, the Book of Common Prayer, will be used for the first time. The copies just recently received have been stamped and placed in the pews. The book is a well bound one with red edges to distinguish it from the Hymnal. It was selected by the rector, wardens and vestry after samples of all editions had been submitted to an expert and had been examined by the official book of the church to determine the best paper, type, binding, etc. The new edition is an example of the wonderful service rendered the Episcopal church by its publishers and especially the church pension fund which uses its large resources for just such service, in that it is made for twenty-five cents a copy, a remarkably low price when the fine workmanship is considered.

All of those boys and girls who have been waiting patiently for their prizes will be awarded their copies at the sessions of the church school on Sunday morning at 9:30 a. m. and 11:00 a. m. respectively.

The hymns, psalms, scripture readings, prayers, for the coming Lord's day will be selected with reference to the observance of National Christian Social Service Sunday, illustrative of the application of the teaching of Christ to the modern and in comparison with His day, the complicated conditions of social or group life today. The sermons will deal with this great present day theme in American life, often taken for granted as so not realized as a marvelous contribution of Christianity to every day life. In the morning Mr. Pearson will go right back to the New Testament and unfold its social message, in the evening the uses to which this part of the glad tidings can be put today will be considered. The hours are 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. and the church is located on the corner of North Mill and East Falls streets. All social service workers whether paid or voluntary are invited.

Peter's Adventures

SNAP-BEETLE "SNAPS OUT OF IT"

Peter liked Biffer but he didn't like the way Biffer treated his cousin Snap-Beetle. So the boy became Snap-Beetle's champion and told Biffer exactly what he thought of that young Gun-Beetle's actions. For a moment Biffer seemed ashamed of himself; his head drooped. Peter turned his back upon him. Biffer perked up.

"See here boy you don't understand!" shrieked the young Gun-Beetle. "We are teasing Snap-Beetle. I admit. But he doesn't mind very much although he will pretend to. He doesn't need your help to get on his feet either. You watch and see if he does!"

Peter had turned his back upon Biffer to go to the aid of Snap-Beetle but at Biffer's plea he stood still. After a moment Biffer was right and he was minding something that wasn't his business. After all if Snap-Beetle didn't care why should he? If it was only a joke Biffer and the Tumble-Bugs were playing upon their cousin why any good sport ought to be able to take a joke even when it was on him. He'd wait and see.

And while Peter was watchfully waiting something happened. Jerk went Snap-Beetle's little body. "Snap," Peter heard a faint sound. And up sprang the fallen beetle—not only to his feet but he leaped high into the air. When he came down again close to Peter's side Snap-Beetle was right-side-up and on his feet again.

"Great Scott! How did you do that?" demanded Peter in his surprise. "You're a real hero now. Snap-Beetle had not been introduced. His voice scared Snap-Beetle half out of his wits. Once more the nimble fellow went up in the air.

"Wh-wh-who are you?" stammered Snap-Beetle. "And wh-what are you going to do to me? It is bad enough to be 'little goat' without fearing every stranger you meet is going to play some mean trick upon you!"

Flow Of Ground Current Being Measured Here

Gas Company Officials Seek To Determine Action Of Electrolysis On Pipes

Flow of ground current, returning to its source over rails of the traction company here, is being measured by representatives of the Columbia Gas and Electric Co.

Representatives of the company were here yesterday, and had a millimeter, which records in milliamperes, stationed at various points in the downtown section, connected with the street car rails.

The test is being measured to determine the flow of current over the rails, and where leakages occur and the amount.

It is the contention of the big gas and water companies that electrolysis of pipes no mean part in the destruction of pipes under ground. This comes in a great measure from the street car rails, they believe and the amount of this leakage is being determined through tests conducted from time to time in various cities.

According to a layman's explanation of the proposition, the electricity which passes over the wires returns to its source, part of it over the wires and part of it over the rails. It follows the line of least resistance and in many cases jumps from the rails to underground pipes, and then back to the rails again. In jumping from the one object to the other, the metallic substance is pitted. No action occurs at the point where the current enters. It is only when it leaves that the mark is made.

This constant jumping back and forth, it is claimed, tends to shorten the life of the underground pipe, this destructive force being added to that of erosion and corrosion.

Electrolytic action has been lessened to some extent by bonding the rails; that is, welding the joints together, but this has not been found to be altogether satisfactory, it is claimed, leakages still existing after this has been done.

Electrical engineers are doubtful if any further remedy can be applied to stop this leakage.

A great many local citizens have undoubtedly wondered what the curious little boxes were, which they have seen sitting along the curb, attached by a wire to the rails and grounded to a fire plug or some similar object. Representatives of the company making the tests give the above explanation.

It may be still Greek to a number of people after the explanation has been read, but it is a subject which can only be thoroughly understood by an expert.

Foster's Weather Forecast

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Following the moderate storm wave expected to cross continent during week centering on 21, a rather severe and prolonged cold wave is expected to cover the continent and to reach farther south than usual; what will probably prove to be the lowest temperatures of the present winter will be expected to center on 25; most severe weather during this period, relative to normal, will be expected in east half of continent from meridian 90 eastward. A storm wave of mild intensity will be expected to cross continent during week centering on 29; as this storm wave moves eastward, temperatures will rise and precipitation increase generally over the continent; a moderate cold wave will follow storm centering on 30 but trend of temperatures will be upward from January 27 far into February. Thile precipitation is expected to be general and above normal during last days of January and first days of February, it is expected to be heaviest in east part of continent during this period.

Very few areas in North America are now short of moisture and many spots are oversupplied. During February I will expect a general decrease in precipitation; especially a decrease in heavy local down-pours, which includes snow and other frozen precipitation. I will not expect February precipitation to average far, if any below normal; as stated in previous bulletins, I will expect spring moisture to be ample for all purposes in practically every area of North America. From letters received, it seems advisable at this time to repeat: Storm waves and other weather features forecasted in these bulletins are expected on a given day are expected to cross 90th meridian on that day; the average storm travels from west to east at the rate of 500 miles a day and takes one week to cross the continent; count one day earlier west or one day later east for each 500 miles you are located from 90th meridian. To change these central on 90th meridian runs north and south nearly 500 miles east of Winnipeg, near Port Arthur and near New Orleans. A map showing the 90th meridian and giving some explanations of terms used in these bulletins will be sent to readers of this paper who enclose return postage with their request to Foster's Weather Bureau, Box 1930, Washington, D. C.

Summary of expected February cropweather features will appear in next weekly bulletin. Moon phases in the near future occur as follows, given to nearest hour of Greenwich Civil time; to change Greenwich Civil time to your local standard time, count one hour earlier for each fifteen degrees of longitude you are located west from Greenwich: New Moon January 29 at 19 hours; First Quarter February 6 at 17 hours; Full Moon 13 at 9 hours; New Moon 28 at 14 hours; First Quarter March 8 at 4 hours.

We never like to pass a cold wave on east but it's the only way to get rid of one.—The Omaha World-Herald.

Seventy College Seniors From Westminster To Practice Teaching Here

Seventy members of the senior class at Westminster will spend a month as cadet teachers in high schools of the district in order to qualify for state department teachers' certificates, Professor J. A. Shott announced yesterday. The college seniors start their work Monday and most of them have been assigned to New Castle schools.

A group of 21 seniors will get their teaching experience at the Benjamin Franklin junior high school in New Castle. These seniors are: Martha McMurray, Canonsburg; Marie Harry, New Bedford; Glen McCracken, Volant; Samuel Stewart, McKeesport; William Hamilton, New Wilmington; James Blackwood, Cleveland, O.; Bessie Smith, Steubenville, O.; Helen Bigger, Clinton; Catherine Elder, New Castle; Marion Blair, Harrisburg.

Another group of 33 seniors will be assigned to the New Castle senior high school. These students are: Anna MacEwen, Pittsburgh; Sara Bigger, Clinton; Margaret Guy, New Castle; Elizabeth Ferrall, Canton, O.; Margaret Brickley, Cresson; Edwin Anderson, Mars; Rosamund Sowash, New Wilmington; Mary Allis Hastings, Bradford; Edith Round, New Wilmington; Frank Bair, West Middlesex.

Margaret Ochiltree, Pittsburgh; Eleanor Wilson, New Wilmington; Errol Fullerton, Edinburg; Amodeus Profio, Cecil; Stanley Pollard, New Castle; Kenneth Dyer, Pittsburgh; Sara Hemple, Dormont; Mary Tea, Pittsburgh; Eric Groezinger, Philadelphia; Edith Caldwell, Cranston, O.; Jean Boyd, New Wilmington; Ruth Brown, Elma; Marjorie McClure, New Wilmington.

The following seniors will be at the George Washington Junior High school: Mildred Lusk, New Castle; Emma Ochiltree, Pittsburgh; Aubrey Moore, Hopewell Junction, N. Y.; Wallace Maxwell, New Wilmington; Ruth Lewis, New Castle; Catherine McClure, Blairsville; Stephen Havrilla, North Braddock; John Trevasik, Turtle Creek; and John Gillespie, New Castle.

The seniors start Monday and spend one month as cadet teachers and then return, starting their classwork in college the first part of March. A number of other seniors will get their practice teaching in high schools in the Pittsburgh district at the same time, but the majority, through special arrangement with the New Castle school authorities, will be in New Castle.

Eight Suspects In Purse Snatching Are Taken Into Custody

Wealthy Woman In Philadelphia
Store Restaurant Has Purse
With $8,000 Stolen

(International News Service)
PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 25.—Eight suspects were under arrest today as detectives attempted to solve the daring theft of Mrs. Joseph P. Edwards, Biarritz, France, society woman's purse, while she was dining in a department store here yesterday.

The purse snatcher, a well-dressed athletic youth with sandy hair, stole by, grabbed the handbag and rushed out into the street into the dense traffic. He was soon lost in the crowd.

The bag contained approximately $8,000 in cash and jewelry.

Mrs. Edwards, the former Miss Marie Abell, of Baltimore, member of one of Maryland's oldest and wealthiest families, is stopping at the exclusive Warwick Hotel while visiting her son, a student at the University of Pennsylvania. She was accompanied by her daughter Roselle at the time of the theft. She is the widow of Dr. Joseph Edwards, the son of a prominent physician of this city.

The suspects, all youths about 20 years of age, were arrested in the vicinity of the store. They are being grilled.

Prayer In Congress

The house met at 12 o'clock noon. The chaplain, Rev. James Shera Montgomery, D. D., offered the following prayer:

O Thou divine and blessed Father, who lovest us more than we love ourselves, may we be learners in Thy school of wisdom, so that in the royalty of intelligence and in the gentleness of affection we shall understand Thy purpose in men. O Thou Lord of lords, we pray for the whole world, across which the nations have passed in their migrations and armies in their conquests. Come and reign on the entire earth. Fulfill Thy decrees and bring to pass happy and safe years of world peace and co-operation. Be at the round table of the conference beyond our borders, and be above charter, treaty, and tradition. Take out of the way all hindrances that force the Christian precepts may be augmented and that the work of international understanding may make haste toward completion.

O God, sovereign in love and sovereignty in power, we pray that all peoples may know Thee and submit themselves to Thy will, and may the whole earth be brought into closer relationship and become the garden of the Lord, over which shall hover the holy dove of peace instead of the dark raven of war. We pray in the name of the Man of Galilee. Amen.

Mrs. Edwards, the former Miss Marie Abell, of Baltimore, member of one of Maryland's oldest and wealthiest families, is stopping at the exclusive Warwick Hotel while visiting her son, a student at the University of Pennsylvania. She was accompanied by her daughter Roselle at the time of the theft. She is the widow of Dr. Joseph Edwards, the son of a prominent physician of this city.

The suspects, all youths about 20 years of age, were arrested in the vicinity of the store. They are being grilled.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 25.—Eight suspects were under arrest today as detectives attempted to solve the daring theft of Mrs. Joseph P. Edwards, Biarritz, France, society woman's purse, while she was dining in a department store here yesterday.

The purse snatcher, a well-dressed athletic youth with sandy hair, stole by, grabbed the handbag and rushed out into the street into the dense traffic. He was soon lost in the crowd.

The bag contained approximately $8,000 in cash and jewelry.

Mercer Farmers Given Recognition

McDowell Brothers Among 12
Named By Pennsylvania
Farmer As Master
Farmers

MERCER, Pa., Jan. 25.—Two well known residents of the Mercer community, John and Andy McDowell with a residence on the Jackson Center road will be included in the group of 12 Pennsylvania farmers named this evening at Harrisburg.

The 12 will be the guests of the Pennsylvania Farmer group of Pennsylvania for 1930. The selection is made by the editors of this paper who have New Jersey, Maryland and West Virginia as a part of the group over which they are in charge. This is the first time that the honor has come to Mercer county in the three years that this procedure has been made a part of the State Products Show.

HELD ON CHECK CHARGE
C. L. Ryhal of Grove City arrested and held on two charges of passing bad checks before a Grove City justice of the peace. The charges were taken from jail Wednesday afternoon and returned to Grove City to be arraigned on a third charge.

Ryhal from the story told by the police seems to have been artist at this violation of law until arrested by officers.

DISTRIBUTE AWARD
Judge J. A. McLaughry handed down a very important decision in the distribution of the reward of $1,000 offered by the county in February of 1925 for the arrest and conviction of those responsible for bombing the home of ex-mayor F. S. Fish of Farrell on the night of February 21.

Frank Capano is now doing a long stretch for the crime. The court gives to Armine Exposito who after arrest told all he knew in the Farrell police station that led to the arrest of Capano the sum of $400. To James Reed then chief and Frank Slazek now chief and I. E. Frankel constable of Farrell he gives $200 each.

CATTLE POISONED
Victor Rupert, well-known farmer living near Mercer reports poisoning of his cattle. Four heads of valuable dairy cows already dead and the veterinarian expresses fear that others will die.

Mr. Rupert has no idea how the cattle met their death.

STARTS DRIVE ON DOGS
Agent Harry Higbee of the bureau of animal husbandry starts his 1930 crusade in Mercer county on the search of non-licensed dogs next Monday morning.

Higbee has been busy on other matters of animal owners would have taken place before. In 1929 there were 700 dogs killed in this county that were non-licensed. Two-thirds of them were shot in Hickory township Higbee reports shooting 19 in a day around the slaughter houses adjacent to Farrell and Sharon.

He will repeat the clearance this year he states. Dog owners with animals they set any value on should apply at once.

GRANGE TO MEET
There will be a quarterly meeting of the Pomona Grange of Mercer county held on February 6 at the Friendship Grange hall on the Greenville-Jamestown road. The first meeting will be at 10 a. m.

COURT TERM TO OPEN
There will be 48 new cases for the January criminal court which opens next Monday morning. They are the result of the three day deliberation of the Grand Jury.

To this number will be added the continuances of the October term. It is estimated that the list will total 60 for the term. There will be two courts in operation to dispose of them. Judge Claire Kent of Crawford county is expected on Monday.

The trials may be expedited by the present consideration of J. A. Stranahan, Jr., attorney for Frank Panetico of No. 5 Mine who will be arraigned for the murder of Bruno Cangelli.

It is possible that Stranahan may enter a plea to murder for his client. Under legal procedure the court will then proceed to take testimony to determine the degree of crime.

District Attorney Leo McKay said that he would accept no stated plea other than first degree murder which of course no attorney would allow his client to plead too with a death penalty attached. By the other method Pantelo will be given a trial with the court deciding at the termination of the testimony just what the degree of crime should be.

There are seven charged with driving drunk to be tried and 21 for violations of the liquor laws. Many pleas are expected among this group.

Scheduled for trial among the liquor defendants is Pete Valigo of Sharon who was among those brought in for questioning in the bombing of the home of District Attorney McKay. He is believed to know more than he told. He is alleged by the police to be a big time bootlegger.

Chill Has Returned
From Houston, Texas

W. N. Chill, of this city, who is traffic manager for the Automatic Sprinkler Corp., of America at Youngstown, Ohio, has just returned from Houston, Texas, at which city he represented the National Automatic Sprinkler Association of New York City, a voluntary organization comprising 54 sprinkler companies, in consolidated southwestern cases No. 13335, I & S 3130, which were held before Examiner R. G. Taylor of the Interstate Commerce Commission Washington, D. C.

For a period of a week the hearings were held at St. Louis, Mo., and another week was consumed at Houston, Texas. A decision of the case will be announced later by the Interstate Commerce Commission as to the outcome of the hearings which were held.

NEW CASTLE

by
The Woman's Club — Organized in 1889.

OUR CASTLE

"GOD COULDN'T BE EVERYWHERE, SO HE MADE MOTHERS."

In this proverb, even the pagan recognizes in the mother, a God appointed guardian of the race.

Our own city knows no greater need than just such guardianship or mothering—for our homes, for our schools, for our recreations and for our public housekeeping. To aid such work is the aim of this column.

WORLD FRIENDSHIP TREASURE CHESTS

By Mrs. William Cosel
To help promote friendship among the children of the world, the Woman's club, with other groups in New Castle, has joined a nationwide movement promoted by the Federal Council of churches.

The first good will project was between the children of the United States and the children of Japan, the American children sending 13,000 dolls to Japan. These were exhibited at the famous Japanese doll festival. A reciprocal project was instituted in Japan in which over 2,000,000 Japanese children shared in the sending of 58 dolls dressed as Japanese princesses.

The second project was sent to Mexico and the symbol used was the Friendship School Bag. 30,000 of these were sent to the children of Mexico and distributed on Mexican independence day. A reciprocal project is now under way in Mexico in the form of an exhibit of its arts and industries, one being arranged for each state in the union.

The third project will be sent to the Philippine Islands. The symbol, a "friendship treasure chest", will be purchased by the various women's clubs of the United States and in this project the women's clubs of New Castle will have a part. Our chests will be filled by the school children of our city. A wide range is permitted the children in the selection of these articles—things which children like to use in school or play and including books. Any books offered must measure up to set standards.

Aside from the good will tidings which these treasure chests carry, an opportunity is presented for special education in the habits and customs of the Filipinos. For only as we make an honest effort to understand our neighbors can we hope for permanent peace.

The War department of the United States has considered this project so favorably that it has offered to carry these symbols of our friendship by way of a battle ship and so convert a war instrument into a true ambassador of good will.

Our handicapped children
In his address on Monday to the Woman's club and the teachers of the city, Dr. F. H. Reiter of the State Department of Education expressed the opinion that derelict children are those whose parents are financially unable to give them educational advantages and that this term does not apply to those children who are mentally and physically unable to profit by the regular established school courses of study—that such children are more properly termed handicapped. These children often have remarkable possibilities in the use of the hand; that it requires brains to use the hands just as much as it does to use the mental faculties. That the work of derelict children are very often made self supporting through the education to which they are adapted.

And more than this the highest aims of education are to teach the getting along with people and the development of character. These are impossible to handicapped children without the special education adapted to their needs. Thro' it they are made happy and self respecting instead of becoming the victims of criminal tendencies induced by the otherwise aimlessness and idleness of their lives.

Dr. Green in introducing Dr. Reiter, emphasized the greatness of this need in the education of today. New Castle, he says, thro' a survey made, shows 250 children in need of this special education.

OH, THESE WOMEN!

By LEOLA ALLARD

"If I were you," and Gladys daubed on some more rouge, "I wouldn't go to see Flossie any more. She talks about you something terrible the minute you leave the house. Says really awful things you know."

"Oh, that's too bad. I like Flossie."

"Well, I don't know, but it seems to me I prefer the plainer, rougher people, not so much polish, who say right out what they have in their minds."

"I'm so sorry about Flossie! I wanted to think she liked me."

"Well, you want the truth, don't you?"

"I'm not sure I do. Somehow I can't help but feel that she likes me. She has spent many hours saying pleasant things to me, to make me feel happy, and that's quite a service. Don't you think so?"

"But my dear, she says that you don't pay for any of your luxuries, and that they are always given to you, and yet she KNOWS perfectly well you've always worked."

"Huh."

"I prefer honest people. Ones who tell you right out."

"Gossip is a habit and I don't think people always mean it unkindly. They chat about you, and tell what they consider the 'low down', and yet they don't feel or think unkindly. I belong to a card club once, and if one of the four who always played together had to stay away she always saw to it that one of her group was there to protect her if the gossip got going. Yet these girls all liked each other. They sort of laughed about it."

"Terrible!"

"They didn't intend any harm. It was just among themselves and they were really friends."

"Now there's Grace Jones; you don't like Grace. You think she is unpleasant, disagreeable, a tattler and yet she is so honest, she tells you right to your face what she thinks."

"What satisfaction is that? I have faults. No doubt others know it. Sometimes I suppose it's a temptation after I leave, to speculate on all the things they think and know about me, but it doesn't hurt me IF I CAN'T HEAR THEM. They wouldn't be said to my enemies. There IS a difference you know. It's all right to correct people in business, if you think you can help them, but socially life would be a kind of a flop wouldn't it, if everywhere we went we were confronted with the truth about ourselfes? I always seek out the people who tell me pleasant things."

"It's for your own good."

"So many disagreeable things ARE! They don't improve a social evening. Now take tonight—"

"Oh very well—good night."

"Good night. I'm going to hang a motto over my fireplace. It's going to read 'Bring Me Good News or None.'"

Knights Will Go To Butler Event

Delegation To Attend Anniversary Event In Butler On Sunday

Grand Knight Thomas J. Cunningham, Financial Secretary Joseph F. O'Leary, State Secretary Bernard N. Hanlon, Peter P. Capitola and other officers will head a large delegation of members of St. Mary's Council, Knights of Columbus, that will journey to Butler Sunday, January 26, to attend the third degree and banquet which will mark the silver anniversary celebration of Butler Council, K. of C. District Deputy John Murrin, Grand Knight E. A. Brennan and Lecturer Jesse E. Duffy, will be in charge of the program on behalf of Butler council.

District Deputy Edward F. Griffin, of Pittsburgh, will confer the third degree, beginning at 2:00 o'clock. A banquet will be served in the auditorium of St. Paul's church at 6:00 o'clock. Principal speakers will be Past State Deputies Leo G. Griffith and P. W. Ries, Jr., both of Pittsburgh; P. J. McCarthy, of Toledo, past State Deputy of Ohio and representing the Supreme Council; and Harry Loew, charter member of Duquesne 1904.

Butler council was organized in 1904 with forty charter members, twenty-two of whom will attend the banquet and degree. St. Mary's council is four years older, having been organized here in 1900.

Much local interest attaches to announcement by Pittsburgh Chapter that the annual Charity ball, is to be held Easter Monday evening at William Penn hotel, Pittsburgh. A dozen New Castle couples usually attend this big annual fixture. Music for the ball of 1928 was furnished by a New Castle orchestra, directed by Steve Griffith.

See Former New Castle Folks Out In Phoenix

While the party of officers who went to Phoenix to return Irene Schroeder and W. Glenn Dague did not stop over night in Phoenix, some of them did manage to get a chance to say hello to New Castle people now living there.

Following the rushing of the prisoners out from the state capitol of Arizona to Chandler, Arizona, Sheriff Johnston left with Sheriff Wright in another car. Down town Dr. B. M. Berger formerly of New Castle picked up Sheriff Johnston and started out with him. In the excitement of the moment it was supposed that Dr. Berger was rushing Johnston to Chandler also but it later developed that he was merely taking him for a ride around the city.

Although they had little chance to entertain their former townsmen, the New Castle folks in Phoenix were most hospitable. The cars of Dr.

Berger and Arthur Middleton were at the disposal of the visitors and before train time Dr. and Mrs. B. M. Berger held an impromptu "New Castle reunion" in their pretty home. In addition to Dr. and Mrs. Berger, there were present Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Middleton, who reside in Phoenix, Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Perry who are visiting the Middletons, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Layton, of Laurel avenue, who are spending the winter in Phoenix.

Earlier in the day William Veach, also a former New Castle man was present at the capitol building and offered his car. William Brennen who spent some time in Phoenix this fall was there also. He and his family are now on their way home. Mr. and Mrs. John Ray Preston are visiting in Tucson, Arizona, some two hundred miles away and did not get over to Phoenix.

Latin Honors Are Awarded

Pupils Who Have Achieved Honors For Year Are Announced

With the end of the semester at senior high school though it is now the middle of the year many students have completed a year's work. This is owing to the mid-year promotions which result in mid-year commencement now the rule in the local school. It is, therefore, at the mid-year as well as at the end of the school year that scholastic honors are awarded. The Latin department has now announced the names of students who have done particularly outstanding work in that subject.

First, seniors who have just been graduated but who completed their Latin last June are: Summa Cum Laude, Edith Cleveland; Magna Cum Laude, Ella Mae Johnson; Cum Laude, Geneva Hazen and James Gardner.

Senior B's whose full course in Latin is completed but whose graduation occurs in June: Summa Cum Laude, Ruth Mervis; Magna Cum Laude, Laura Cowmeadow; Cum Laude, Merle Hildebrand.

Cicero honors are: Summa Cum Laude, Angeline Castrucci; Magna Cum Laude, Julius Bloom; Cum Laude, Thelma Hemphill, Ethel Davis.

Eight Are Injured As Trolleys Crash

Eight In Pittsburgh Suffer Injuries When Street Cars Collide

(International News Service) PITTSBURGH, Jan. 25.—Eight persons were injured here Friday when the street car in which they were riding struck another street car at a downtown intersection. The failure of the brakes on one of the cars to hold them steady had the right of way is blamed for the accident.

The injured, none of them seriously hurt, it was said, were taken to Mercy hospital for examination, where all but three were immediately discharged.

Father And Son Die In Flames As Home Burns

(International News Service) GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Jan. 25.—George Routsaw, 52, and his 12-year-old son Bobbie lost their lives in a fire which swept their home in Galewood early Friday.

Another son, James, 8, was rescued by his 13-year-old sister Marjorie. She dragged her brother through a window with his clothes ablaze and rolled him in the snow. He is in a serious condition in St. Mary's hospital. Routsaw and Bobbie died in their beds.

Origin of the blaze has not been determined. An investigation was to be made by Coroner H. C. Wolfe.

Weather Conditions Caused Plane Crash Verdict Of Probers

(International News Service) OCEANSIDE, Cal., Jan. 25.—After examining witnesses who saw the T. A. T. airplane crash and the flight of sixteen persons to their death, a coroner's jury Friday had decided that the tragedy was caused by adverse weather conditions.

Encountering rains and fogs, the pilot of the machine, which was being flown from Agua Caliente, Mexico, to Los Angeles, attempted to return to San Diego. While banking for a turn, a wing tip struck the ground, showering gasoline on the motors. Fourteen passengers and two pilots were burned to death.

Boy Coaster Is Fatally Injured

WASHINGTON, Pa., Jan. 25.—The coasting season has claimed its first victim in this city with the death of Silva Florida, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oswald Florida of 120 Grove avenue. The young man succumbed in the Washington hospital to hurts received when the sled which he was riding was struck by a bobsled carrying a party of merry-makers. Young Florida suffered a fractured skull and internal injuries. He leaves his parents, three brothers and a sister.

Coaster Loses Eye When He Hits Sled

GREENSBURG, Jan. 25.—Joseph Gribble, 9-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William Gribble of Alverton, lost his left eye as the result of a coasting accident near his home.

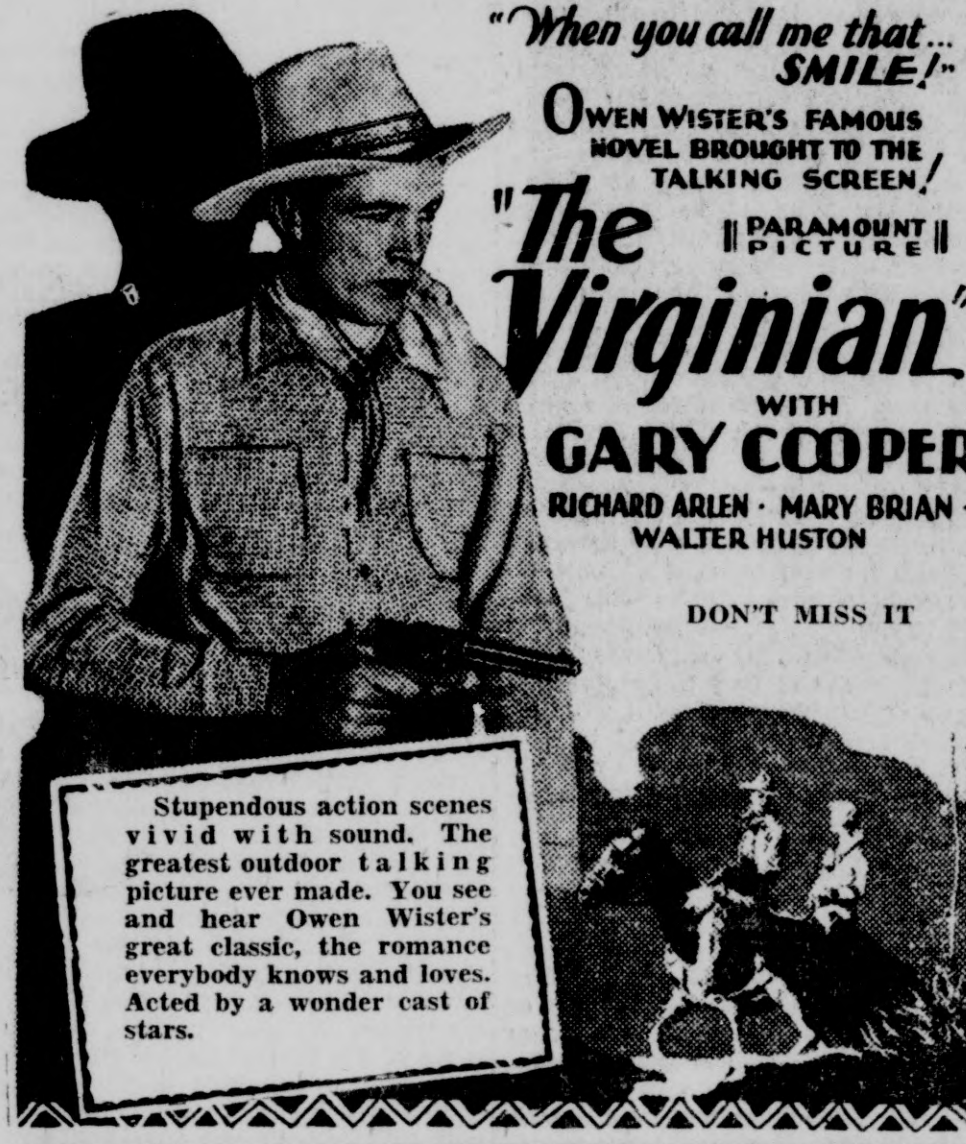

Young Gribble, throwing himself on his sled to go down the hill "belly grinders," caught the end of the runner of a sled held by the boy in front of him in the eye. The ball was injured so badly that surgeons were obliged to remove it immediately.

The size of fish taken from the Great Lakes has been limited by treaty. Another influence that has a like effect is called veracity.

Union Church Day Will Be Observed

First Union Service Of The Year Will Be Held In Union Baptist Church

For over 12 months the churches of New Castle under the direction of the Ministerial Alliance have assembled monthly at 3 p. m. in one of the churches to hear a message delivered by one of the pastors of the group. These services have continued to increase in interest and attendance and have helped both spiritually and materially.

The various choirs combine to furnish the musical part of the program, which has been a strong feature of the meetings and the sermons have been of an unusually high order and of inspirational nature. The dominant note of the hour has been unity and union.

At 3 p. m. Sunday the congregations will meet in the Union Baptist church to hear Rev. L. J. Lizzard of Ellwood City deliver the sermon for the first meeting of the year 1930 and the community choral, a chorus of 50 voices, will furnish special music for the occasion.

Dr. Williamson Leader In Church Unity Meet

Unification Of Presbyterian Bodies Aim Of Denominational Leaders

Attach Significance To First
Joint Conference Slated
For Wednesday

Dr. C. J. Williamson pastor of the Highland United Presbyterian church of this city is a member of the United Presbyterian committee on church unity which meets representatives of four other leading Presbyterian denominations in a conference in Pittsburgh next Wednesday an event which it is anticipated will mark the completion of another step towards consolidating the 11 denominations that are members of that church family.

The call for the meeting was given by Dr. William J. Reid, D. D. pastor of the First U. P. church of Pittsburgh and chairman of the ministers and laymen who will represent the denominations.

Leaders of the church attach considerable significance to the coming conference due partly to the fact that each representative group has the sanction of its governing body. Each will report to its own general assembly next summer just what headway toward unification was made.

Three Vital Questions.
Dr. Williamson will fill an important role not solely because he is a member of the U. P. committee but because he will preside over the group which will consider the possibility of union. There will be two others, one on the desirability of uniting and another to consider objects now in the way.

On Tuesday evening the night prior to the joint conference ministers and laymen from the different denominations concerned will gather in the William Penn hotel where again members of the United Presbyterian church will play host to the visitors who represent other denominations. Speakers for the fellowship dinner include Dr. Robert E. Speer representing the Northern Presbyterian church; Dr. Raymond F. Cleve, representing the Dutch Reformed church, and Dr. James I. Vance representing the Southern Presbyterian church. The Rev. Dr. John McNaughton, moderator of the United Presbyterian church and president of the Pittsburgh Theological Seminary will preside and officially welcome the brother denominations.

Conference is Open.
Conference will open on Wednesday morning and may be attended by as many as the meeting rooms will accommodate. Ministers and laymen from the surrounding district are expected to be present for at least a part of the day.

The main thought of the committee will revolve around three questions: the desirability, the possibility and objects that confront themselves in the matter of consolidating. Select leaders from the different denominations will guide the discussions in each.

To Summarize Results.
Of unusual interest is the open meeting which is planned for Wednesday night following adjournment of the conference. Here the findings of the meetings will be summed up by Dr. Harry W. Noble chairman of the unity committee of the Dutch Reformed church and by Dr. H. C. Swearingen a leader in the Northern Presbyterian church.

The German Reformed church will be in attendance at the conference but the chairman of the committee of that church requested that they be omitted from the list of speakers and that request has been complied with.

Different ministers of the local Presbyterian denominations plan to attend both the dinner on Tuesday night and Wednesday sessions it is reported. Lay delegates from this district may also be among those participating for the dinner event. Denominations to be represented in the conference next Wednesday will be the Presbyterian church, U. S. A. (Northern Presbyterian church); the Presbyterian church, U. S. A. (Southern Presbyterian church); the United Presbyterian church of North America; the Reformed church in America (Dutch Reformed) and the Reformed church of the U. S. (German Reformed).

ENTERS ARGUMENT ON CRIME.
New Castle, Pa.
January 24th, 1930.

Editor Of The News.
Dear Sir:—
I have noticed two letters published in your paper one on January 17th. and the other on the 21st., which bore the signature of S. A. Cowden and W. C. Sankey, and after reading those letters will kindly ask you to publish this one from me.
No vulgar language was used by Mr. Cowden in his letter, he was frank and honest in his opinion as are several others in this city of ours. The jurors most surely ought to be criticized as people are disgusted with the verdict brought in on that particular murder case, as there was not a single redeeming trait of character discovered through the whole trial even to the beginning.
It did not need to take five days and five nights of pondering on the case to study on witnesses, where the murderer did not deny the crime he committed on the public highway, when he took the lives of two women and wounded a small innocent boy by his side. And then come into court with two able bodied attorneys to ask an intelligent court of justice, and a very intelligent body of men and women on a jury to show him mercy, through a self inflicted disease and of the testimony taken by the jury they knew that at no time did the party show his victims any mercy, when he had the smoking gun in his hand, and then to turn yellow and blame his down fall on his wife and his lady friend, knowing in his own heart that he knew what his wife was before he married her, so why should a coward sit before a jury, and to lower the character of the ones that are not here to speak for themselves, as the saying is. Dead men tell no tales. But if the parties concerned were here, it would have been a different story.

Mr. Cowden sure has my sympathy where he mentioned, about cheating the electric chair, even at that Seever's would have gotten off a lot better than he deserved. Mr. Sankey, as that chair would not have been hot enough for him.

I think Mr. Sankey that it would do you good if you had time to investigate and see how our friend treats his associates where he is now, and after that I do not think that you would call this man a good law abiding citizen.

Wouldn't you think that it would make more than Cowden blood thirsty as you call it, at the rate that things are going now and that there seems no way possible to put a stop to it.
I do not see where Cowden is unreasonable, nor vain but it seems not only trying to live up to the law that we can not understand, why these things have to come home to us, but it seems that is the only way some people can do a justice, neither must we forget when we are on a jury and sworn to do our duty, as a citizen of this Commonwealth that we are to render a verdict, just and true, from the evidence that is heard in a case, and not to show any sympathy for either side of the case we are jurors on.

Our laws of Pennsylvania are good, if we only had men and women in the state with grit enough in them to see that the laws were enforced and not disobeyed.

It is no wonder that this country is overrun with criminals. How can it be otherwise?

Very truly yours,
MARION VA. BENEDICT.

Preaching Mission Will Close Sunday

Rev. W. E. Hammaker Will Deliver The Sermon Sunday Evening To Mass Meeting

The various Methodist congregations of the city will unite in a great mass meeting Sunday evening in the First Methodist church, when the preaching mission, which has been conducted all week, will be brought to a close. Rev. W. E. Hammaker of Youngstown, O., pastor of the Trinity Methodist church at that place, will bring his final message to the assemblage.

Friday evening Dr. Hammaker used as his subject "Straight is the Way and Narrow is the Path" and he emphasized the point that straight thinking about Christ and about life, and carrying it out in our actions, was what got us somewhere in this world. The Epworth choir furnished the musical part of the program last night, with a solo by Samuel Lewis. The combined choirs of all the Methodist churches will furnish the song service for the evening mass meeting.

Frontier Days To Be Recalled

El Comancho, Westerner, To Bring Stirring Tales Of Early Days

EL COMANCHO

El Comancho, romantic adventurer, trapper, rider of the old trails and meat hunter for some of the survey crews that year by year pushed some of the earliest railroads through the west, will speak before New Castle Rotarians next Monday at noon.

El Comancho appears today as something of a symbol of the history and romance of the raw wilderness as it was when Jim Bridger, Buffalo Bill Cody, Deadwood Dick Clark, Wild Bill Hickock, Calamity Jane, Custer, Miles, King Sitting Bull and the brave gay company of adventurers that rode and fought and died and wrote their glowing passages into the history of the American west.

It is said that El Comancho not only "knows his west" as few men of our time know it, but also acquired the ability to write it and speak it in a way which won thousands of attentive listeners to his radio talks made last winter in Chicago.

Grove City Units Plan Inspection

Federal Officers To Conduct Annual Inspection January 27 And 28

GROVE CITY, Jan. 25.—The two National Guards unit of the Penna. National Guard are working hard at their drill to get in shape for the annual inspection which will be held in the Grove City state armory on January 27th and 28th.

At that time officers from all parts of the state will be present and Col. C. Blaine Samthens, commander of the 112th regiment will also be present.

During the past week, headquarters company 112th Infantry received from the adjutant general's office, Washington, D. C. approval of the insignia for the 112th Infantry. This approval is the culmination of several years of work on the part of the local officials. The insignia as approved consists of a shield, containing a cross for civil war service, a Spanish castle showing Porto Rico service in 1888, and a stone bridge with the center portion shot away, commemorative of the bridge at Fismette, in France, where the 112th saw the hardest fighting during the World war.

Final details of the insignia will be worked out during the coming inspection. It is contemplated to secure sufficient insignia to equip the entire regiment consisting of 65 officers and 1,088 enlisted men.

PLAN GYM CLASS
Plans have been practically completed for the holding of a business men's gym class each Monday from 12 noon until 1 o'clock. The class will meet in the gymnasium of the Grace Methodist church and it is expected that a large class will be on hand for this event.

Last year the business men met in the college gym for the purpose of playing volleyball but it was impossible owing to the heavy schedule at the college gym, to get any time for this organization.

ANDERSON RETURNS
H. R. L. Anderson has returned to his work in Harrisburg after having spent several weeks in his home in this city.

COLLEGE SEMESTER ENDS
Grove City College's first semester will close today. College will resume its work Thursday, the 30th.

LEAVE FOR PHILADELPHIA
Dr. and Mrs. Earl Gedney and family will leave today for Philadelphia where Dr. Gedney has arranged for the opening of an office and where they expect to make their future home. Dr. Gedney has been employed as an intern in the Bashline-Rossman hospital for the past three years and has made many friends in this city during his stay.

TO ENTERTAIN CIRCLE
Mrs. Grant Filer and the Misses Lois and Hazel Engle of Superior street, will be hostesses this evening to the members of the Ward Circle of the Methodist church. Following the regular business meeting a social time will be enjoyed. Lunch will be served.

Beggars are reported to have a union in China. But it occurs to us that they must have some difficulty in organizing anything in the nature of an effective strike.—The Lowell Evening Leader.

Bishop Anderson Is Seriously Ill

Carnera Kayoes Peterson In One Terrible Round

Primo Carnera, Italian Giant Scores Quick Kayoe In New York Debut

PETERSON GLAD TO STAY DOWN

By DAVIS J. WALSH
International News Service Sports Editor
NEW YORK, Jan. 25. — Another Firpo—just as fearsome in aspect, just as vivid in personality, just as uncultured in deportment—loomed darkly upon the near horizon today in the person of Primo Carnera, the Pe-ti-to-fum man of boxing. The 268 1/2-pound Neolith from Italy won from big boy Peterson by a serious knockout in the first round of his American debut and, whatever the cause of the events leading up to the tragedy, the effect was to send a turn-away crowd of 20,000 gibbering into the night. Some of the intelligence sniffed audibly but the Humpty Dumplings undoubtedly thought Primo was great.

Peterson Respectful
Big boy was most respectful throughout. Twice in the minute and ten seconds of action, he was cast roughly upon his haireut with a shove of the giant's bear-like paws; twice he forsook the perpendicular as a result of strictly legal gestures. The last time this happened, he was prevailed upon to relax and stay put until the referee reached a count of nine and half-tenths. Then big boy arose with alacrity. But the poor fellow was too late. The fateful net had been told and naturally he was heart-broken. Anyhow, he never had any serious intention of becoming heart-broken.

Both pushes and punches went as official knockdowns. The referee, Arthur Donovan, counting two over big boy as a result of a left push for the first knockdown; eight for the second as a result of a right cross to the beard; five for the third in consequence of another left push; and the full ten for the last, which was brought about by an overhead right which nipped big boy's profile as it swept ponderously through space. The profile followed immediately.

Big Boy Collected
Just to prove that he was thoroughly collected—so are the ashes on Monday morning—a big boy lay there through the count, earnestly hitting himself on the chin. This, it was explained later, was meant to clear his head. Another good way to clear the head is to point a 45 at the temple and firmly pull the trigger.

Anyhow, big boy got over the first punch, a straight left that caused him to blink pettishly. It also caused him to rush to an attack that didn't end until big boy was no more. I don't blame the latter for finding himself down. His greatest mistake came in failing to get down there sooner. Almost as late as the Italian, he was 10 1/2 pounds lighter and looked like a bett slat by comparison. He simply didn't belong.

Helped Out Anyhow
His only excuse for being there, in fact, was to help the Neolith put on his show and one must grant that the latter gave a good one. He may not be able to fight, as fighting is understood in America. But neither could Firpo and it took Dempsey to lick him. And in his most bizarre days, Firpo never had the color this big clown reeks as naturally as a section hand perspires.

He came down to the ring side, a study in lurid green and looking for all the world like a big clumsy boy romping in a village of pigmies. His peaked cap, large enough to cover a watermelon, was green. So was a sleeveless sweater from which his great arms bulged like a dowager's. One of his handkerchiefs had to stand on a chair to reach the sweater and, his huge legs showed a gnarl of varicose veins.

Incidentally, he proved to be remarkably fast on his feet and, speaking of these, their size runs both to altitude and longitude. Primo has duplex feet. They have a mezzanine. No wonder they went wild over his victory. No wonder they waited patiently in the darkened street for his departure. He's another Firpo as sure as rat poison—provided he can keep on winning.

Nature isn't so grand. How much better men would fare if dead hair had to be pulled and defective teeth would come out on the brush.

Three Games In Church League

Three Fast Games Were Played In Church League On Friday Night

In the first game the Central Christians downed the Central Presbyterians 23 to 12. At the half the score favored the Christians 13 to 5. The Presbyterians were held to three field goals. Cowmeadow was the big star of the game with six baskets.

The Wesley M. E. team defeated the Highland U. P. boys 33 to 13 in a well played game. The score at half time favored the Wesley team 15 to 5. The last half attack of the Wesley team was too much for the Highland team with Mottinger running wild. Clark, Smith and Gibson also played good basketball.

The First Baptist team swamped the Epworth M. E. boys 50 to 4 in a lopsided battle. The score at the half found the Baptists ahead 23 to 2. The Epworth team was held to two field goals. A. Uram, T. Wallace, Brenner and Smith played good basketball.

Boosters To Play Grove City Team

New Castle Boosters Go To Grove City Tonight For Basketball Game

The New Castle Boosters will go to Grove City tonight for a basketball game with the fast Company L team of Grove City. The game will be played on the Armory floor and will start at 8 o'clock.

Coach "Fix" Fraser and his Boosters hope to add the Company L team to their list of victims for the year. The Grove City team is in second place in the Western Pennsylvania Troop league and are reputed to have a strong outfit. The team is composed of ex-high and college stars.

The Boosters are on a winning streak and hope to continue their string tonight. Coach Fraser asks the players to report at the "Y" tonight at 5:30 o'clock for the trip to Grove City.

PITTICISMS

They've discovered a phantom college in Brooklyn. It held meets but no classes. That's one way to save the high cost of education.

Maybe that's where all the ghost writers learned their stuff.

This is the first time the world ever knew it had educated spooks. Imagine running into a wraith with a Harvard accent!

Graduates of this goblin seat of learning probably hold annual homecoming on Halloween.

When the school held a big track meet the "faculty" would come to life and haunt the box office.

Even a ghost realizes that money is money. You never have seen one wearing patches. And sheets of good unbleached muslin, come high.

One nice thing about phantom colleges: you can write a big donation check in invisible ink. It's all the same.

West And Firpo To Clash Monday

Indian And Firpo Cut Heavy Training And Arrive Here Tomorrow

Willie Meets Mayberry; Zibby And Fry Local Boys Are On Calendar

Indian Tiger West of Arizona and Henry Firpo of Louisville, middleweights, have ended heavy training and will indulge in only light calisthenics today and tomorrow in preparation for their 10-round boxing bout Monday night at the Jolly Bowl.

The fighters will arrive here sometime tomorrow, weigh in at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon and according to statements of their managers are in fine fettle for their fistie embroglio.

West has fought two good battles in this section. He beat Harry Fuller and Knockout Kelly. He sent Fuller twice to the floor at Oil City and proved the feat was not a fluke when he defeated Kelly. Firpo has yet to be defeated at 140 pounds and hopes to outpoint West though he realizes he is the most dangerous middleweight he has met.

Johnny Willis, Philadelphia and Howard Mayberry, McKeesport former bantamweight champion of Canada, meet in a six round semi-final.

They are in good shape. Willis has fought some good bouts in the Quaker City. Mayberry has yet to put on a slow contest.

Frankie Fry of New Castle and Jimmy Hogan of Erie, meet in one of the six round preliminaries. They are middleweights. Young Zibby of N. W. Castle will tackle Charlie Solomon of Erie in the first six rounder at 142 pounds.

The first bout will start at 8:30 p. m. The bowl furnaces were started today and owing to the prominence of the main bout participants in relation to the semi-final a big crowd is expected.

East Brook High Teams Win Games From Mt. Jackson

East Brook Boys Take Close One 12-11; East Brook Girls Defeat Jackson 34-11

It was a red-let night at East Brook High on Friday evening. The East Brook boys and girls victory teams won their respective floor games from Mt. Jackson High boys and girls.

In the preliminary game the East Brook girls had rather an easy time with the Mt. Jackson maidens, winning 34 to 11. The playing of Miss Simison was sensational. This little lady scoring thirteen field goals, while Wallis played good basketball. For Mt. Jackson the work of Miss Daugherty was the best on the attack with Tindall and Fullerton the best on the defense.

The boys game was lively one from start to finish, with the outcome in doubt until the final moment of play. East Brook won the game 12 to 11. The field goals were evenly divided three apiece for the teams, but East Brook won the game on the foul line by caging 6 out of 16, while Mt. Jackson had 5 out of 15. It was one of the best played games at the East Brook floor this year.

The summaries:

Word has been received in New Castle that Harvey Harman, former New Castle high, and Pitt grid star will sever coaching connection with Haverford college for next season and will be head-coach at the University of the South, at Sewanee Tennessee.

Paul Seill, former fullback at Penn will assist Harman as coach of the Sewanee team it is reported. Harman has handled the reins at Haverford for the past eight years, following his graduation from Pitt. While at the Pittsburgh school Harman was mentioned as All-American in football. His many friends here will be pleased to learn that Harman has bettered his coaching position in the collegiate grid world. He had fine success at Haverford.

Chamber Officials Appoint Monroe To Head Chamber Here

Lowell W. Monroe, City Manager, Appointed To Vacancy Cause By Resignation Of Mr. Bickett

Thor W. Bruce Of Marquette, Wisconsin, Is Elected To Post Of Secretary Of Chamber

ELLWOOD CITY, Jan. 25.—The board of directors of the Ellwood City Chamber of Commerce held their first meeting of the year in the chamber rooms last evening at 8 o'clock and if the years activities are to be gauged by the enthusiasm displayed last night, certainly Ellwood City will have a very successful year. The members present at this meeting were:

C. P. Clark, president; Paul Cartwright, M. Edelman, Ray Aylesworth, W. R. Johnston, A. E. Conner, W. C. Martin, J. W. Offutt, Robert Crawford, J. J. McLaughlin. Only two of the entire board being absent. One of these men being out of town and the other tendering his resignation from the board.

The resignation comes from Milton A. Bickett, past president of the chamber who on account of his transfer to Monessen found it necessary to resign from not only the board of directors but from the chamber as well.

It was with regret that the board accepted the letter of resignation. The unexpected term of Mr. Bickett was filled by the appointment of Lowell W. Monroe, city manager. Mr. Clark the newly elected president gave out his committee appointments for the year.

The board also elected Thor W. Bruce to the position of secretary of the chamber. Mr. Bruce comes from Marquette, Wisconsin, and he has had a number of years experience in Chamber of Commerce work, having served as secretary of the McKeesport chamber also the Chamber of Commerce of Hanover, Pennsylvania. Both the United States Chamber of Commerce and the Pennsylvania State Chamber recommend him as being an exceptionally good man and we feel that Ellwood City is fortunate in securing a man of this type for this particular job. It is expected that Mr. Bruce will assume his duties here sometime between February 1st and 15th.

Owing to the fact that we do not have a secretary on the job at the present time the president withheld his progress of activities for 1930 but he intimated, however, that a number of worth while projects are being considered and it is very likely that our industrial and community activities will go forward in a brisk manner during the coming year. Every director present pledged his support to the new officers and promised to give their utmost co-operation.

PROGRAM OF WORSHIP IN LOCAL CHURCHES SUNDAY

Kiwanians To Hear Prof. Aber Monday

ELLWOOD CITY, Jan. 25.—Members of the Kiwanis Club will have the pleasure of hearing an address of Rev. Aber, who is teaching one of the departments in the stewardship course in the Methodist church.

Rev. Aber has chosen as his subject, "When Competitors Co-operate", which should prove most interesting to local business men.

PUBLICITY: J. J. McLaughlin.

WATERWAYS DEVELOPMENT:

F. E. Moore, chairman; C. C. Danderson, J. W. Offutt, R. T. Brown, W. L. Dean, George Pugh, W. R. Thompson.

Husbands Guests At A. M. L. Club

ELLWOOD CITY, Jan. 25.—Mrs. O. E. Wick of Spring avenue entertained the members of the A. M. L. club Friday evening at her home with the husbands of the members as special guests. Other special guests present were Miss Josephine Hartzel and Miss Mary Steinberger.

Four tables of bridge were enjoyed and resulted in score honors going to Mrs. Harry Steinberger, Mrs. Charles Markwort, Sam Johnston and Miss Josephine Hartzel.

Later delicious refreshments concluded the pleasant meeting. In three weeks Mrs. H. W. Phelps of Fourth street will entertain and again the husbands will be permitted to attend.

Attend Praise And Prayer Service

ELLWOOD CITY, Jan. 25.—Thirty five members of the Providence Baptist church, North Sewickley, attended praise and prayer service at the home of the pastor on Orchard avenue last evening.

After the prayer service, the meeting resolved itself into a social, and old fashioned donation party; refreshments, etc., having been provided by the ladies, came as a complete surprise and was greatly appreciated by the pastor and his wife.

Celebrate Their Anniversary Date

Mr. and Mrs. William Weingartner residing near Energy, celebrated the 17th anniversary of their marriage date Friday night with a small dinner party.

Covers were laid for six at one large table, centered with flowers. Dr. and Mrs. Charles Bell and Rev. and Mrs. Paul Elliott were present, and following the delicious dinner a social evening was enjoyed.

NEW YORK STOCKS

Prices Higher Today
On Stock Exchange

(BULLETIN)
By W. S. COUSINS
International News Service Financial Editor

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—While the usual week-end profit taking held up the steam-roller advance in the market favorites in the short session of the market today. Higher prices were quoted for the leading rail, oil, amusement and specialty stocks, including the farm implements and food stocks. As in the last day or two the market was "thin" and it required only a small volume of buying or selling to rally or depress prices.

Business news at the week-end was excellent, including evidences of good business recovery in January; the increase of steel mills operations to 75 per cent of capacity; probation of Oklahoma crude oils runs to 70 instead of 80 per cent production; a better outlook in the motor industry and firming commodity prices.

The oil stocks spurred on the crude oil curtailment announcements. Under the lead of Standard of New Jersey and Atlantic Refining, Sinclair, at the head of the independents, moved up a point to 24 1/2; Mexican Sea Board gained 2 points at 20 1/2; Standard of Jersey topped 64.

General foods and Fox Film were again in the limelight, Fox moving up cautiously to 28 and General Foods, with much blowing of the trumpets, topped 51 for the first time this year.

Murray Corporation showed a little speed in its new rise to 24, on reports of profitable new incoming orders from Ford. Advance Rumely common and preferred recovered some of the ground lost in Friday's late trading and Radio-Keith was a favorite above 27.

New York Central led a spirited rally in the railroad stocks in the second hour and raced up in heavy trading to 179 1/2 for a new gain of 2 1/2 points. Southern Pacific, Atchinson and other high grade rail shares joined in the movement. After an early decline to 175 1/2, which shook off all of yesterday's advance, United States Steel spurred to above 177 in a heavy turnover. Westinghouse, General Electric, Consolidated Gas, Columbia Gas and other blue-chip industrial and utility stocks reached the highest price levels in two weeks, and gave encouragement to the belief that the market has finally broken out of its trading rut in the direction of higher prices.

All sections of the industrial list showed their ability to absorb heavy selling in a moderately advancing market in the second hour, commodity markets were steady, with cotton and local futures slightly higher and grain fractionally lower.

Interesting Demonstration Of Gym Work Takes Place In Shelby Gym

Conducted under the auspices of the local Y. W. C. A., the girls' gym classes of Ellwood City put on a very interesting and enjoyable demonstration of their class work in the Shelby gymnasium at Ellwood Friday night. Friends of the members were guests.

Following the demonstration, the guests were invited to join the members of the class in a folk dance after which they went to the Presbyterian church. Here a series of games were scheduled.

The social committee served a delicious lunch. The members of this committee included Kathryn Lundgren, Muriel Bourne, Emma McLaughlin, Dorothy Kimes, Clara Stevenson and Jane Watterson.

Friday night's event featured the close of the fall term and it is expected that many of the guests present will join the class when the spring term opens Friday, February 8.

Irene's Father Delays Visit

Decides Not To Come Here To See Her Today

MRS. DAGUE WILL COME NEXT WEEK

(Special To The News)
WHEELING, W. Va., Jan. 25.—Joseph Crawford, aged father of Irene Schroeder, alleged "Blonde" killer of Pennsylvania Highway Patrolman Brady Paul, at New Castle upon advice of his physician decided not to visit his daughter at present. He had intended to have visited her in company with Chief of Police Francis Moran of Bellaire today.

Mrs. Mamie Baum and Mrs. Maud Schoeninger, sisters of Irene left early this morning for New Castle to attempt to visit their sister. Jos. Crawford, the father of Irene today received a telegram from Ex-Congressman Benjamin F. Rosenbloom from New Castle telling him that the habeas corpus action had been withdrawn in connection with the attempt to regain control of Donnie.

Mrs. Walter Glen Dague, Viola, W. Va., school teacher and wife of Glen will go to New Castle the first of the week to see her husband. "I will not make any statement until I first secure from my husband his version of the matter. He will tell me the truth I am sure. I am not condemning either of the pair until I see and talk to him," she said.

A hunt for the "mystery man" said to have been the third party in the murder car instead of Tom Crawford, brother of Irene is under way here today according to Sergeant A. M. Long, of the West Virginia state police. "We have a tip that he is a friend of Dague and not Tom Crawford, as formerly believed," said the police sergeant.

Urge Quick Action On Pension Raise

(Special To The News)
WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 25.—A petition of Mrs. A. M. Stockburger and 26 others, asking the Federal Reserve Board to increase the pensions of Union Veterans of the Civil war, of New Castle, urging quick and favorable action on the pending legislation to increase the pensions of veterans has been presented in the House by Representative J. Howard Swick.

Congressman Swick has submitted also two petitions urging similar action in behalf of Spanish-American War veterans, one from W. W. White and 76 other residents of Freedom and vicinity, and the other from Ned O. MacDonald and 30 other citizens of Aliquippa.

The American government's appeal for Norwegian aid in getting Rear Admiral Byrd out of the Antarctic has been sent to Chairman Rasmussen of the Norway Corporation of Whaling Companies at Samedford, Cooperation Promised

While all have promised to cooperate to the fullest extent, whaling officials were unanimous in the belief that the pack ice would break up in plenty of time to permit Byrd's own boats to get through into the Ross Sea.

A full conference was expected to take place among whaling officials today, at which time it will be decided what instructions to send to their various vessels in the Antarctic. It is likely that word will be sent out for all whaling captains to be prepared to go to the immediate aid of Rear Admiral Byrd if this is found to be necessary.

Will Dispatch Vessel
On behalf of the Norwegian government, it was said that a vessel would be dispatched to Little America immediately if word was received that Byrd's supplies were running low.

Captain Whistling, who piloted the exploratory ships of the late explorer Roald Amundsen, told International News Service today that he believed Byrd and his party would be in no actual danger before March, as the pack ice in the Antarctic invariably breaks up during February.

No definite decision has been reached to send a relief ship to Little America, but the whaling association of Norway is fully prepared to send an expedition to Byrd's base if necessary.

Love Making Of Pair Is Ended

Irene And Dague Not To See Each Other In Jail

MUST NOW FIGHT GRIM BATTLE ALONE

Irene Schroeder, the "Golden Tiger" and her "Man Friday," W. Glen Dague, the bandits who defied an Arizona posse and then surrendered when their own hides were in danger, are today accustoming themselves to the routine of the Lawrence County Jail.

Glenn is down on the first floor in the first tier of cells on the side of the prison where the major prisoners are kept. Irene is up on the second floor in a cell in the woman's department.

Love's young dream which kept them pawing over one another from Phoenix, Arizona to New Castle, has been rudely shattered and the crouching of honeyed words has been replaced by the clanking of steel doors.

Won't See Each Other
They will not be given the opportunity to see each other according to Sheriff Johnston. For the last time they have sat and held hands and cheered each other with brave phrases about "seeing it through together."

For the last time they have held each other in their arms and whispered sweet nothings into each other's ears.

From now until they go to trial they will be in separate parts of the jail and their chances of seeing each other are slim. Just a few yards away from Irene, is Donnie her boy whom she carried with her on her banditry trips to throw off detection. She will not be allowed to see him until such time as Sheriff Johnston and District Attorney John S. Powers deem wise.

Irene's little day in the sun is vanishing. The Golden Tiger will vent her wrath only on steel bars from now on, and her Man Friday, W. Glen Dague, he of the bovine eyes, will be down stairs sharing his lot with a choice assortment of murderers, thieves and bootleggers.

Norwegians To Assist Byrd In Present Plight

(International News Service)
OSLO, Jan. 25.—Directors of the principal whaling companies operating in the Antarctic were pledged today to do everything in their power to prevent Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd from being marooned by pack ice at his explorational base, Little America.

The belief was expressed, however, that there was little danger of Byrd and his crew being hopelessly hemmed in by ice until March at the earliest, as reports from whaling vessels in the vicinity indicate that the ice is not in as bad shape as had been first reported.

The American government's appeal for Norwegian aid in getting Rear Admiral Byrd out of the Antarctic has been sent to Chairman Rasmussen of the Norway Corporation of Whaling Companies at Samedford, Cooperation Promised

While all have promised to cooperate to the fullest extent, whaling officials were unanimous in the belief that the pack ice would break up in plenty of time to permit Byrd's own boats to get through into the Ross Sea.

A full conference was expected to take place among whaling officials today, at which time it will be decided what instructions to send to their various vessels in the Antarctic. It is likely that word will be sent out for all whaling captains to be prepared to go to the immediate aid of Rear Admiral Byrd if this is found to be necessary.

Will Dispatch Vessel
On behalf of the Norwegian government, it was said that a vessel would be dispatched to Little America immediately if word was received that Byrd's supplies were running low.

Captain Whistling, who piloted the exploratory ships of the late explorer Roald Amundsen, told International News Service today that he believed Byrd and his party would be in no actual danger before March, as the pack ice in the Antarctic invariably breaks up during February.

No definite decision has been reached to send a relief ship to Little America, but the whaling association of Norway is fully prepared to send an expedition to Byrd's base if necessary.

Battleship Issue In London Parley To Be Sidetracked

By GEORGE E. HOLMES, International News Service Staff Correspondent
LONDON, Jan. 25.—All question of the London naval conference considering the abolition of battleships has been definitely squelched and the subject won't even be given a place in the agenda when the "big five" meet to discuss procedure on Monday.

This was learned by International News Service from an official source today.

Battleships Excluded
The tentative agenda which Premier MacDonald prepared originally contained the question of "abolition or retention of battleships" but after consultation with the others of the "big five," the premier agreed that it would be better to leave the question out.

This was found satisfactory to all the delegates and was possible obstacle to agreement among them was thereby removed.

For Thrills, A Trip On Rumrunner Boat Satisfies, According To Local Man

(By JANET KISSINGER)

If Lady Fortune hadn't been in a good humor one certain day, about three years ago, two prominent citizens of New Castle might have had quite a lot of explaining to do, and they might have even been asked to crack stones for a little while in one of the accommodating workhouses.

But when these two men went for a sight seeing cruise in Alexandria Bay, among the "Thousand Islands," Lake Ontario, on a rum runner, Fortune just gasped a little, and let them go.

They were perfectly innocent, understand. The story runs something like this, as told confidentially to the writer this morning.

These men, when vacationing at Alexandria Bay, wanted to take a trip around the bay in a speed boat. They saw one especially nice looking boat speeding around and immediately decided that that was the boat they wanted.

So they motioned the driver of the speeder and asked if they could hire the boat for an hour. The driver agreed to take them around. The trip out was a very enjoyable one, the writer is told.

They motored into a little inlet in an island, and the two New Castle men were asked if they cared to fish for awhile. Of course they did. The climax of the story comes when the local men notice that the owner of the boat fishes out of the water something which was certainly not fish.

It was booze. Quarts and quarts of it. It was planted there by a confederate and it was up to the two local men to get it to get it into the United States safely.

It must have been a thrilling ride, with revenue boats perilously close. But they landed safely on United States ground—to stay for awhile.

Ten In Hospitals Due To Taxi-Cab Strike Rioting

Attempts To Run Taxi Service In Pittsburgh Causes Rioting And Damage

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 25.—With ten men in the hospital, a score of others less seriously injured and considerable property damage done, the strike of the taxi-drivers of the Yellow and Green Cab divisions here of the Paramelee Transportation Company entered into its fourteenth day on each side determined to carry on.

Rioting yesterday followed the efforts of the company to place its cabs on the streets after striking drivers refused the company's ultimatum to return to work or be refused further employment. The drivers, protesting that imported strike breakers were being imported, refused and engaged in numerous conflicts throughout the day.

Cabs are being driven in two's here today, with the second cab carrying detectives, deputy sheriffs and company men for the protection of the first.

The strike, which began two weeks ago tomorrow, followed the declaration of drivers that an increase in pay announced by the company turned out to be an actual cut in wages for the older drivers while it offered inducement to new drivers.

Farmer Is Killed By Falling Tree

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Jan. 25.—Crushed under a heavy tree, which fell upon him, John Gaz, 52, farmer of Brighton township, died in the hospital here today.

Gaz, with two neighbor youths, was cutting the tree which stood on the line between his farm and that adjacent. Without warning, it toppled down and Gaz was crushed to the ground. He was rescued by the two men and a physician called.

Gaz leaves his wife, who is now visiting in Italy, and four daughters.

ABE MARTIN On Newspaper Portraits

A SNAPSHOT OF AN AGRICULTURIST STANDIN' BY A PRIZE HEIFER

I wuz greatly distressed when I picked up my newspaper recently and saw a picture of Aaron Shot, recently appointed janitor of the courthouse. Aaron Shot is prob'ly as fine a lookin' man as you'd meet on a world cruise, but the ole out-of-date, flat, front view, weddin' day, scared lookin' picture of him in the newspapers made him look like he'd murdered a whole family with a scythe an' wuz cornered in a haymow. Hell prob'ly never live down the picture an' it'll very likely crab his gran'-children. In this day an' age when most anybody is liable to jump into prominence, either by bein' murdered, or run over an' killed, sued for $500,000, held for rum runnin', or elected, or appointed to office, it behooves us all men or women, to keep an up-to-the-minute photo of ourselves in easy reach. Not a full front, or full side, Bertillon picture, but a nifty three-quarters style, mebbe with the chin reclinin' in one hand, a pleasant, but not tooth showin', picture with all waris an' moles retouched out. This is a photographic age, an' cameras are cheap an' plentiful. Ther's movie cameras within reach o' all, that is they don't cost nearly as much as cars. It's quite the fad to take movies o' the whole family on the porch, or on the lawn, wherever it's possible to assemble a family. The thing to do is to make a movie o' the family once a year an' put it away fer the future like currant jelly or canned tomatoes. As time goes by they're interestin' in showin' how mother has warped, how the frosts of time have rounded father's shoulders, an' how the children have lengthened an' widened. The picture's the thing. Ever'body likes to look at a picture, whether it's a demolished car, a newly appointed game warden, a prominently mentioned possibility, a nice lookin' young feller held for shavin', or what not. Newspaper readers almost demand pictorial art, with their readin' matter. They kin tell by a feller's picture whether he's guilty months before his trial, they kin tell how a young groom or bride "ll turn out from their picture. Camera men are ever'where today, at funerals, weddin's, corner stone layin's, an' ever'where ther's any news lurkin'. Folks
